AN OHIO BANK LOOTED

Seven Men Took Part in a Bold Burglary in Buckeye State

TOOK CASH AND VALUABLE BONDS

Many Citizens Pursued Them, Exchanging Shots, but not Succeeding in Making any Captures. Bloodhounds to be Used.

BANDITS DISPLAYED COOLNESS

SOMERSET, O., March 27.—Seven bandits partially wrecked the State bank of Somerset early yesterday, by exploding a heavy charge of nitro-glycerine in the vault doors, secured $5,000, appropriated two livery rigs, held a posse of citizens at bay and escaped in the face of a heavy fire. Bonds and securities to the amount of $30,000 and $5,000 in gold coin were overlooked by the bandits. The bank was fully insured and its business will not be interrupted.

A heavy explosion in the bank building shortly after 2 a. m., aroused citizens living in the vicinity of the bank of Somerset. John Hayes, whose home is directly opposite the bank building, raised a window and quietly observed 4 men stationed in front of the bank.

He saw that the whole front of the two story brick building in which the institution was located had been shattered, and, believing he could frighten away the men, who, it was evident, were much alarmed by the strength of the explosion, hastily donned his clothes and sallied forth. When he reached the sidewalk he was challenged, and, under the influence of 4 rifles pointed at his head, again mounted the stairs and secured arms.

Meanwhile many other persons began to appear in the darkened streets of the village. Wm. Lovett opened fire on the bandits with a rifle, but his aim was not of the best, and his shots only served to draw the fire of the robbers. The shooting soon became general, as citizens crept toward the bank from all directions and the robbers evidently began to think of escape.

At a signal from the 4 on guard, three others emerged from the debris of the bank, bearing several sacks into which they had hurriedly placed their loot. The robbers were under good discipline and their leader gave his orders like a military leader: "All ready, forward, march."

Single file they marched under the shadows of the trees which lined the sidewalks, turned a corner, clambered into 2 rigs and drove in a northerly direction.

Citizens took up the chase and at 4 a. m., found the rigs deserted along the roadside. The sheriff of Perry county had been notified by telephone and arrived at daylight with a pack of bloodhounds which will be used in the chase. The robbers were successfully tracked around town by the hounds.

It was found they had broken open a blacksmith shop to secure tools and then had taken the rigs in which they escaped from a livery stable near the bank. So successful were the hounds in their work that it is hoped that the entire gang will be bagged.

A Former Bellefonte Boys Success.

The Charleston, Clendennin and Sutton railroad is now doing a fine business, both in freight and passenger traffic, the latter having almost doubled in volume within the last two years. The superintendent, Mr. Charles K. McDermott, is an exceptionally fine railroad man. Under his efficient management the road has increased its business probably as much as tenfold within the last five or six years. Everything about the road goes like clockwork, and such a thing as a serious accident or a fatality on the line is never heard of. A railroad having as few accidents as the C. C. and S. certainly belongs to the first-class, in the point of efficient management. The above clipping is taken from a West Virginia paper and refers to a former Bellefonte boy, a son of the late John McDermott, of this place.

Honors won on Tented Field Preferred.

It is said that Vice President Roosevelt does not wish to be called "Governor" or "Mr. Vice President," but simply "Colonel Roosevelt." "I earned my own colonelcy," he adds: "the other things came to me." Our fellow townsman General James A. Beaver, who has the right to several honorable prefixes to his name has this same feeling regarding his preference of his distinguished titles. He prefers that of "General" to those of "Governor" and "Superior Court Judge." The former he won by gallant and conspicuous service during the civil war; the latter, as in Col. Roosevelt's case, came to him in the nature of official preferment.

How a Family Saved Postage.

CHICAGO, March 23.—E. W. Reynolds, of that city and his brother, McPherson Reynolds, of Washington, with their cousins, aunts, uncles and other relatives, have solved the problem of letter writing. By writing one letter a month 19 different Reynolds families, in six different states, have been kept posted as to family happenings. No member of the family, moreover, has had to spend more than six cents postage a month.

McPherson, who is a government bacteriologist, sat down and wrote a letter to the the whole family in six states, telling all the news in his own family. This he sent to E. W. Reynolds, who read it and then wrote a general family letter, which he attached to his brother's letter, and sent both to George J. Reynolds at Carrollton, Mo. The latter followed suit and the package went to a niece at Coloma, Mo., then to a sister at Latch, Mo., then to the parents of Mr. Reynolds at Harper, Kan.

After more additions, the whole packet came back to Washington. Mr. Reynolds tore off his own letter, read all the others, and then wrote a new letter and attached it, giving all that had happened in his own family since he wrote the first letter.

Badly Frightened Workmen.

W. H. Moyer, of Colyer, is operating a well equipped shingle mill near "Pole Cat City," and Saturday morning Mr. Moyer was working about the mill as usual, when for some unaccountable reason the glass steam guage broke. The escaping steam shrieked in a hideous manner, and the workmen concluding the concern was going to pieces, lit out for their lives into places of safety. John Lee at last mustered up courage enough to shut down the engine, and examining into the cause of the explosion, which proved as stated above. Messrs. J. H. Royer and Henry Moyer were also in the mill at the time, and none will deny that the escaping steam made them think of better and happier days—Centre Hall Reporter.

Abandonment of Turnpikes.

Senator Heinle, of this county, has introduced a bill in the senate authorizing the abandonment by turnpike road or highway companies of such portion of their turnpike roads or highways as are separated as to ownership or possession from the longest continuous portion thereof remaining in the possession or ownership of such companies, after the appropriation or condemnation to public use of an intermediate portion thereof.

This Affects Sheriffs.

Senator W. C. Heinle last week introduced a bill in the state senate providing that were the Sheriff acts as jailor and has his residence in the county prison, he shall appoint a turnkey, the salary to be fixed by the county commissioners.

—Capt. Harry Simler Saturday morning received word from Pittsburg that James Lee, aged 30, one of the colored men arrested for highway robbery in 1897, died Tuesday night at the Western penitentiary from consumption. It will be remembered he was sent to the institution by the Clearfield county court on December 8, 1897, to serve a five year sentence for robbery, which occurred on the highway at Nuttall's block between Philipsburg and Osceola. Lee, in attempting to resist arrest at Tyrone, it will also be remembered, was shot by Capt. Simler, but recovered from the wound. He was a native of Ohio, and when received at the penitentiary was suffering from the disease that proved fatal.

—Mrs. Catharine Bierly, of Rebersburg, died Tuesday morning at 8 o'clock, at the age of 89 years, 5 months and 18 days. Her Husband, Melchoir Bierly, preceded her to the eternal world January 11, 1895. Deceased is survived by two children—Charles, with whom she made her home, and Mrs. Jane Brungart, of Salona. The funeral took place Friday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock from the late residence. Services were conducted by Rev. Harmon of the Lutheran church.

A DEADLY CYCLONE!

Terrible Storm of Wind Devastated a Southern City.

BIRMINGHAM, ALABAMA STRUCK

Twenty-Five Lives Lost—Force of the Wind so Great that Houses were Smashed Like Egg Shells. Hundreds of Trees Uprooted.

DAMAGE DONE IN OTHER TOWNS

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., March 26.—Shortly before 10 o'clock yesterday morning a fearful tornado swept over the southern section of this city, traveling in an easterly direction.

The number of killed is estimated at 25 Only 5 of them are white. The destruction of property is placed at a quarter of a million of dollars. Eighteen bodies have been recovered from the debris up to dark and scores of injured have been removed to the hospitals.

The storm struck the city in the extreme southwestern corner and plowed its way eastward, leaving a path 150 feet wide through the entire southern section extending from Green Springs, on the west, to Avondale, on the east, and continued its course on until its fury was spent in the mountains beyond Irondale, a small town 6 miles east of the city. The morning dawned cloudy and sultry and grew more threatening as the day advanced. Clouds began to gather and shortly after 9 o'clock sharp lightning flashed from the southwest. The air became heavy and stifling.

The velocity of the wind suddenly began to increase and soon from out of the overcast sky the dreaded funnel shaped cloud made its descent. Hugging close to the earth it passed through the city in leaps and bounds with terrific force and was away to the east before people generally realized what had happened.

The altitude of the cyclone was not more than 75 feet.

The negro shanties and cottages in the lowlands in the path of the storm were the principal sufferers. The larger residences on the higher ground suffered only slightly. The large trees on the hillside of the St. Vincent hospital were torn up by the roots and large masses of stone were twisted out of the ground and broken and scattered all over the driveways of the entrance to the institution.

From Eighth to Tenth street the wind bounded like a rubber ball and when it again descended it struck and demolished 5 small houses. Skimming close to the earth, it then swept through a small pine grove, tearing trees up by the roots and hurling them through the air like arrows.

Beyond the grove the storm cloud swooped down on a negro settlement and the frail cabins were crushed like eggshells, not one being left in the pathway of the storm.

Continuing in an eastward direction the storm swept everything in its path of 75 yards' width until it passed beyond the city limits and struck the Lake View hill, about 34th street. There were no houses of any description in its path after it had passed the city limits and consequently there was no damage until it reached Avondale. On Faggee's hill, just south of Avondale, a number of persons were seriously injured and many houses badly damaged. Onward the cyclone swept and at Irondale again repeated its work of destruction. Houses and fences were leveled to the ground and up to this writing several bodies had been recovered. A number were injured and great property loss was entailed.

Stable Used as a Lock-up Destroyed by Fire.

The barn owned by T. M. Rosser, Mill Hall, was destroyed by fire Saturday evening about 9 o'clock. Constable Rosser had used the stable as a lock-up for Rufus Riter, who had been arrested for intoxication. A bed of horse blankets and hay had been made for the man. In attempting to light his pipe, Riter dropped the match in the hay. The fire had been burning some time before Riter was released. His clothes and hair were singed. With the stable a ton of straw were burned. The loss is placed at $150, which is covered by $100 insurance.

Child Killed Boy who Insulted His Sister.

Louisville, Ky., March 26.—With his fists little Eddie Hoffman killed Charles Callahan, the boy who had insulted his sister. After the fight Hoffman walked off to church leaving his victim dying on the pavement. Callahan was taken to the city hospital, where he died an hour later. Hoffman is charged with murder.

At 7 p. m. Sunday a crowd of boys were standing at Jackson and Jefferson streets. Little Annie Hoffman passed on her way to evening church. Her brother Eddie, who was her escort, had dropped a quarter at the corner, and stopped to find it. The church was barely half a square away.

"I cannot wait, Ed. I'll meet you at church," she called and started on. She had to pass through the crowd of boys. Charlie Callahan, the bully of the gang, noticed the girl.

"Hey, fellers, aint she a peach; I'll just cop her out," he cried and stepped out to meet her. The gang laughed. It happened that Eddie Hoffman had found his quarter and was now almost up to his sister. He heard Callahan's speech. In a moment the little fellow had jumped in front of the bully.

"That is my sister you are talking about," cried the youngster.

"I don't care, I'd as soon it was your sister as another fellow's."

Those were Callahan's last words. Hoffman sailed in with both hands. He knocked the bully down, while the gang looked on. Callahan arose, only to go down again under a rain of blows. At last he lay helpless. Then Hoffman turned to the others.

"Do any of you others want any of my game?" he said.

The gang slunk away, and the victor walked off to church with his sister. Just after he came home the police got him. Callahan was dead.

Died in Alaska—Buried in Penn'a.

Alfred Brant, son of a deceased Allegheny farmer, in July, 1897, dissatisfied with the slow process of making money on the farm, went to California to engage in mining. There he joined the rush of gold seekers to the Klondike. He was well equipped with outfit and provisions, and battled bravely against the reverses which beset him from the first, writing home hopeful letters, telling of future prospects of wealth; and bore the hardships and privations, which only those know who have lived through the vigors of Arctic winters.

Finally he fell a victim of typhoid fever, and in December died. Then a friend named Tennant, who had been closely attached to Brant ever since they entered on their quest for gold, decided that his friend's dust should not be consigned to the frozen soil of Alaska, but lie in the country churchyard in Pennsylvania with his kindred. The body of Brant was placed in a casket, drawn on a sledge by a pair of dogs, through Alaskan cold and darkness, from Dawson City to Whitehorse rapids, a distance of 370 miles, attended by Tennant and several miners. The dismal journey took six days and three nights. From Whitehorse the body was sent by rail to Skagway; from there to Seattle by steamer, and from there shipped to Pittsburg. The casket, covered with express labels, arrived in the city last week, when it was opened and the body viewed by the friends. It was as well preserved as though life had been extinct but a few days.

Mercantile Tax to be Halved.

The merchants of the state, especially the retailers, will be pleasantly surprised at the prospect of having the mercantile tax they are now paying cut exactly in two. The ways and means committee of the legislature, have reported favorably on the bill and there is little doubt that it will be passed.

At present the wholesalers in the state are obliged to pay one half mill tax on every dollar of gross business and the retailers one mill. The amended bill fixes the tax wholesale business one quarter mill and on retail business one half mill.

THE RUSSIAN TORQUEMADA

An Attempt Made to Kill the Gentleman so Named

THE BEST HATED MAN IN RUSSIA

Shots Fired Through a Window at M. Pobiedonostaeff, the Chief Procurator of the Holy Synod, but Missed Him.

HE CAUSED THE EXPULSION OF JEWS

ST. PETERSBURG, March 24.—Privy Councilori Podiedonostzeff, chief procurator of the Holy Synod, narrowly escaped assassination early Friday morning. While writing in his study shortly after midnight, two bullets shattered a window and passed close to the Procurator and buried themselves in the ceiling. The other two shots were fired, but did not enter the room.

The would-be assassin was identified as one Lagowski, a provincial official. The Procurator was unscathed.

An investigation into the causes of the attack is proceeding.

The students' organization committee has issued a call inviting all intelligent members of Russian society to join their ranks in the struggle for freedom.

Constantine Petrovitch Pobiedonostseff, "the Grand Inquisitor of Russia," as he is called, is the most powerful and perhaps consequently the most hated man in the Czar's realm. To his machinations are ascribed almost all the evils which now beset the empire, and which are apparently culminating in the threatened uprising of the people, led by the university students of Odessa, Moscow, Kieff and St. Petersburg.

Pobiedonostoseff was born in Moscow in 1827, and early in life became attached to the legal department of the government. He was one of the tutors of Alexander III, father of the present Czar, and acquired an influence over him which raised him from one eminence to another.

In 1880 he was appointed Chief Procurator of the Holy Synod, and devoted an almost frantic energy to the service of the church. Within 6 years his ascendancy over the Czar had become so great that his office was the most powerful in the government, and it was then that he began his rancourous persecution of the Jews.

Moved by his influence, the Czar, in 1886-7, signed the edicts which permitted only one Jew in about a thousand to be educated, which put terrible burdens on them, and which resulted in the expulsion of 6,000,000 Jews from Russia. It was also Pobiedonostseff who was responsible for the exile of thousands of Catholics and Lutherans, and it was he who recently instigated the excommunication of Tolstoy.

At the same time this slender, spectacled old man is an ascetic of the last degree, and retires at stated periods to the Sergieff Monastery, where he mortifies his flesh after the fashion of the ancient anchorites, remaining for days on his knees, fasting and beating his forehead against the stone wall.

The feeling of the people is aptly illustrated in the fact that contemporary with the attack on Pobiedonostseff come the revolt of the students because the government has dissolved all existing undergraduate societies and associations.

The Russian autocratic form of government is reflected to an extreme degree in the code of discipline prevailing at the state universities. There is a government inspector and an army of assistants, who act as spies over the students, watching their manner of life and learning their political opinions. The students are not allowed to form clubs or associations of any kind or to hold public meetings, and as they are drawn from the poorer classes of the population the universities have always been more or less flourishing centres of Nihilism.

His Hard Fall.

Harry Hilton, aged 16 years, and two companions started from Slate Run on a freight Friday to look for work. When approaching Williamsport the three young men jumped, two of them escaping injury. Hilton, however, jumped and fell through a driveway at this end of Williamsport, to the roadway below. He fell a distance of thirty feet and alighted head foremost on the rocks. Notwithstanding the hard contact he was not rendered unconscious. A scalp wound several inches long was inflicted. He was taken to the hospital.

Forsaw His Own Death.

The little country town of St. Eustache, in the province of Quebec, reports a case of second sight, premonition or presentiment, which is scarcely equalled by any of those related by M. Camille Flammerion in "The Unknown."

One of the villagers, a healthy, middle-aged man named Legare, after rising one morning recently apparently in the best of health and spirits, said abruptly to his wife:

"I am going to die to-night, but you must not trouble yourself about it. I am going to arrange everything in such a manner as to give you little worry as possible."

Mrs. Legare believed that her husband was joking, and attempted to laugh off his remarks. Nevertheless, Legare proceeded to shave himself with care, changed all his clothing and put on clean apparel, placed all his papers and business affairs in proper order and made his will.

Then he calmly asked his wife to go for the parish priest, in order that he might make his confession and receive the last sacraments of the church before dying. Seeing that he was apparently in the best of health, his wife positively refused to go for the priest until Legare had insisted again and again that he was perfectly sane knew only too well what he was about.

The priest went to the house with Mrs. Legare and consented to receive her husband's confession, but positively refused to administer the sacrament of extreme unction, reminding Legare that it could be given only to a dying person. In vain Legare insisted that he was about to die, although perfectly well at that time, and that he would be a corpse that very night. The priest was obdurate and left him.

Legare continued to busy himself with the affairs of his estate until early in the evening, when he suddenly expired. The doctors say that death was due to heart failure and could not possibly, in the natural order of things, have been foreseen. The remarkable circumstances attending the death are, naturally enough, the wonder of the whole district.

Mrs. Carrie Nation was Kept Moving by the Police.

Kansas City, Mo., March 25.—After an eventful day [illegible] Mrs. Carrie Nation arrived here last evening en route for Cincinnati, where she is booked to deliver half a dozen lectures. It was believed she would make an attempt at joint smashing at Leavenworth, but two policemen remained with her all the time she was in that city. She wanted to make a speech in the Leavenworth opera house, but this was locked against her. She then attempted to speak on the public square but officers stopped her. Later she went to the southern part of the city and addressed an audience of 500 persons on a vacant lot. She visited the National Soldiers' Home at Fort Leavenworth and began abusing Gov. Rowland for allowing a canteen to be run on the grounds. After listening to her a short time the governor called a captain of police and had her escorted off the grounds and placed on a car for the city. Along the route from Leavenworth to Kansas City she made rear platform speeches at every stop.

State Regent of the Daughters of the Revolution Dead.

Harrisburg, March 25.—Mrs Louis W. Hall, one of Harrisburg's best known women, died at the University hospital in Philadelphia Friday. She was the widow of Louis W. Hall, prominent as a senator and attorney. Mrs. Hall suffered from Bright's disease for some time and was at the Hotel Walton unti lThursday night, when she was taken to the hospital.

She was made state regent for Pennsylvania of the Daughters of the American Revolution in Washington last month, and was state president of the Daughters of 1812, of which order she was one of the founders.

Fell and Fractured his Skull.

Robert Mingle, who keeps the well known Pine street restaurant at Philipsburg, met with an accident Friday evening that may yet prove fatal. He had gone over to the Ramsdale House, and while in the act of going to the water closet, which is in the cellar, he missed his footing and fell, his head striking on the cemented floor. As a result of the fall his skull was fractured and he was otherwise injured, and he has since been lying at his home in a very precarious condition.

Must Yell Three Times.

The passenger brakemen employed on the P. & R., railroad have received orders to call out the name of a station three times in each coach so that passengers will have no complaint to make about not hearing the name of the station called. Frequently passengers are carried past their destination because they allege the brakeman didn't call out the station properly. This order will no doubt stop all complaints and also develop the vocal chords of the brakemen.

ANDREW CARNEGIE TALKS.

He is Pleased to Receive Workingmen's Thanks.

HE AVOIDED CHECK HUNTERS

Carnegie Remained on Ship Until Just Before Train Started, when He Jumped Into Reserved Compartment and Started for London.

PRAISES NEW YORKS PUBLIC MEN

SOUTHAMPTON, March 22.—Andrew Carnegie, who arrived from New York on the American liner St. Louis at a late hour last night, was interviewed here today. Mr. Carnegie expressed surprise that his donation for the benefit of the New York libraries had caused anything of a sensation.

Two of the many cablegrams received upon his arrival at Southampton referred directly to recent gifts. One of these cablegrams was from Mayor Van Wyck, of New York; the other from the workingmen of Pittsburg, conveying thanks for the recent large donations.

The cablegram from the workingmen of Pittsburg evidently gave Mr. Carnegie the greater satisfaction. "It was a pleasure to make both of these gifts," said Mr. Carnegie to a correspondent of the Associated Press, "but I think my contribution to the workingmen of Pittsburg to be of much greater importance than the donation of the New York libraries, as the workingmen always specially appeal to my sympathy. I had no idea that my bequests for the benefit of the New York libraries would be regarded as in any way extraordinary."

Questioned concerning the Sunday opening of the libraries given to the people of the city of New York, Mr. Carnegie replied:

Mr. Carnegie is a very wise man and silent as the grave regarding such matters. I simply desire that the people of New York follow their own wishes as to the use of the institutions. Whatever they determine will be quite satisfactory to me."

When questioned in regard to his suggested mayorality candidacy. Mr. Carnegie pooh-hoohed any aspirations in that directions. "I will say, however," continued the millionaire, "that New York treats her public men shamefully. They are not half as bad as painted. It is a great city, and you will have to go a long way to find a better one."

"That's what Mr. Croker maintains," suggested a New York man who was present, "Well, Mr. Croker is not so —" commenced Mr. Carnegie, but, checking himself, he said: "I mustn't talk politics. I only want to say that I am glad to be able to contribute anything toward the welfare of the great city of New York."

Mr. Carnegie avoided the Southampton check hunters by remaining on the ship until the last moment before the train started, when he jumped into a reserved compartment and started for London before he was observed by the crowd.

LONDON, March 22.—To an English interviewer, after his arrival in London, Mr. Carnegie talked freely concerning the United States steel corporation, which he thought, would not affect Great Britain one way or the other.

"I think that there is fear," said Mr. Carnegie, "that the corporation's surplus stock will be sold abroad at less than cost or that the corporation hopes to slaughter the steel trade of Great Britain."

Whether the existence of trusts did not tend towards national bankruptcy, or whether they might not prove a step in an evolution towards socialism, Mr. Carnegie said:

"The man behind the trusts is just as important as ever. Consolidations are the tendency of our age and will prove beneficial. The chances of Andrew Carnegie, if he landed a penniless boy in New York tonight, would be as bright as they were in 1848, and he would have even a wider field."

When asked whether the people of America were not likely to pass stringent anti-trust legislation, Mr. Carnegie said no. He thought the tariff was a back number for many things, having done its work. "But," he said, "where it is still needed you may rely it will be freely used."

GENERAL BEAVER BANQUETED.

Leading Citizens of Havana Show Him Marked Hospitality in Cuba.

The recent visit of General James A. Beaver and John M. Dale, Esq., to Cuba proved one of profit and pleasure combined. On the eve of their departure a banquet was tendered General Beaver by Messrs. Cosme and Jose Blanco Herrera on board the steamship "Julia," and according to the following account taken from the next morning's edition of "La Lucha," it must have been a very brilliant affair indeed:

"NOTE OF SOCIETY.

"With the object of bidding a brilliant good-bye to the brave, esteemed American, Gen. James A. Beaver, who departs today for the United States via Tampa—the popular house of Sobrinos de Herrera, owners of the Herrera steamship line, last night gave a banquet on the beautiful steamship "Julia," which was brilliantly illuminated in honor of the illustrious and beloved General.

"The tables full of light and flowers offered a beautiful sight.

"Among those present were noticed Senores Cosme and Jose Herrera, General Beaver, Sir Wm. Van Horne of Canada, W. D. Munson, Senores Gonzalo Quesada, Gelato, Costaneda, Farquahr, J. M. Dale, W. R. Teller, Bear, Gen. Baldwin Capt. Slocum, Capt. Peral and others.

"The menu was excellent, the wines exquisite.

"When champagne was reached Senor Cosme Herrera proposed a toast in Spanish greeting Gen. Beaver, wishing a safe and comfortable voyage and speedy arrival at his home and family. He in eloquent terms greeted all present—Americans, Spaniards and Cubans.

"His toast, by request, was repeated in English by Senor Quesada.

"Responses by General Beaver and Sir Wm. Van Horne followed.

"It was one of the most brilliant feasts of the American world in Havana. Today the General returns to his country. We wish a safe and pleasant journey to Gen. Beaver, who leaves among us an affectionate remembrance."

What a splendid type of tireless activity is the sun as the psalmist describes it issuing like "a bridegroom from his chamber and rejoicing like a strong man to run a race." Every man ought to rise in the morning refreshed by slumber and renewed by rest, eager for the struggle of the day. But how rarely this is so. Most people rise still unrefreshed, and dreading the strain of the day's labors. The cause of this is deficient vitality and be hind this lies a deficient supply of pure, rich blood, and an inadequate nourishment of the body. There is nothing that will give a man strength and energy, as will Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It does this by increasing the quantity and quality of the blood supply. This nourishes the nerves, feeds the brain, builds up enfeebled organs, and gives that sense of strength and vigor which makes the struggle of life a joy. The "good feeling" which follows the use of "Golden Medical Discovery" is not due to stimulation as it contains no alcohol, whisky or other intoxicant. It does not brace up the body, but builds it up into a condition of sound health.

Common Mistakes.

It is a mistake to labor when you are not in a fit condition to do so. To think that the more a person eats the healthier and stronger he will become. To go to bed at midnight and rise at daybreak and imagine that every hour taken from sleep is an hour gained. To imagine that if a little work or exercise is good, violent or prolonged exercise is better. To conclude that the smallest room in the house is large enough to sleep in. To eat if you only had a minute to finish the meal in, or to eat without an appetite, or continue after it had been satisfied, merely to gratify the taste. To believe that the more hours children study the more they learn.

Something About Easter.

Easter will fall on Sunday, April 7, Easter comes as early as March 22 and as late as April 25. It depends, as every one knows, on the phrase of the moon. Easter Sunday is always the Sunday that follows the full moon immediately following the spring equinox, March 21. If the moon falls on Sunday, Easter is the next Sunday following. The latest date upon which the day may fall is April 25. In 1861 and 1818 Easter fell on March 22, but that will not occur again in this or the next century. In 1886 it fell on April 25, and will do so again in 1913.

—Three gaunt wolves, driven from the mountain by hunger, decended upon the town of Rockwood, Somerset county recently, and attacked a team of horses standing in front of Miller's general store. John Buckmans, a hotel proprietor, drove the animals away by using a club. One of the wolves was brained, another was shot and the third escaped. They are the first wolves that have been seen in that section of the state for many years.

—The Tyrone Foundry and Machine company shipped another large size Morris rock crusher to Leroy, N. BESTOWALS.

Dear, I would be to you the breath of balm
That sighs from folded blossoms, wet with dew;
The day's first dawn ray I would be to you,
The starlight's cheery gleam, the moonlight's calm;
I would be as a pillow to your cheek
When toil is done and care hath ceased to grieve;
I would be the dear dream your soul doth seek,
The dream whose joy no waking hour can give.

When strength is ebbing and the road is long,
I would be the firm staff within your hand,
A pillar of cloud in a sun beaten land,
A pillar of fire where night's black shadows throng.
Last, at death's threshold, tender, faithful—nay!
What need to tell that which heart's truth hath shown?
Is not all said, beloved, when I say,
"I love you," being woman and your own?

BETTER THAN LAW.

Julius Was Stumped, So He Concluded to Return the Property.

"I was in Mississippi during the carpetbag days," said the Pittsburg story teller, "and one night at a hotel I was robbed of watch and money. I found out next day that it was one of the colored servants, and I went to a justice of the peace and swore out a warrant. The justice was also a colored man, and he didn't seem anxious to do the right thing. I think he was in with the thief, though willing to give me a show. When the prisoner took the stand, he declared that if he had stolen anything it was while he was walking around in his sleep. The statement caught his honor, and he said:

"'How yo' gwine to hold a pusson 'sponsible fur what he does in his sleep? Dar ain't no law 'bout dat. If Julius dun took dat watch an money an didn't know what he was doin, den he's got to be discharged from custody.'

"I was pleading my own case," continued the Iron City man, "and I replied to the judge that the rule ought to work both ways. If Julius had taken my property in his sleep, he ought to return it while he was in the same condition. I wasn't blaming him for being a somnambulist and was willing he should go free, but I should expect him to enter my room in his sleep that very night and leave my lost property on a chair. That was a stumper on judge and prisoner, and after scratching their heads and wiggling around his honor replied:

"'Julius, dis yere case has dun got mixed up. 'Cordin to law yo' got away wid de stuff an can't be held, but 'cordin to de white man's dreambook yo's got to walk in yo'r sleep ag'in tonight an put yo'r stealin's back in his room. Dat will leabe everyt'ing jest as it was befo', an it 'pears to me dat yo'd better tackle some older man an do it wid yo'r eyes wide open.'

"Julius didn't wait to walk in his sleep again, but handed me my property before we left the courtroom."—Philadelphia Press.

Very Particular.

Mrs. Morse had never used a telephone until her husband had one put into the house so that he might talk with her from his office whenever he wished.

"I do just love to talk through the telephone!" Mrs. Morse declared after three days' experience. "The time doesn't seem half as long from morning till night as it used to when I never heard from you."

"I'm glad of that, my dear," said her husband pleasantly. "I've thought once or twice from the number of times I had to ring up before getting any answer that you didn't enjoy it."

"Oh, no, George," said little Mrs. Morse earnestly, "but you know sometimes when you ring me up I'm busy about my housework with my old apron on, and of course, knowing how particular you are, I always like to unpin my skirt and put on a clean white apron before I begin to talk to you, don't you see?"—Youth's Companion.

Death Could not Separate Them.

Wednesday afternoon a double funeral took place at Karthaus. Last Friday morning Mrs. Sarah Rubly was found dead in bed, when her husband, who was in bed with her, was informed that his wife was dead, he became dazed and remained in that condition until early Sunday morning, when he too expired. Had they both lived, Mr. Rubly would have been 84 in May and his wife would also have been 84 in May. They had been married 63 years and each was devoted to the other.

TRADE MARK

A Man to the Rescue!

The Woman in Peril Rarely Finds Help From Her Own Sex.

It is in no wise to a woman's discredit that she is not a professional life-saver. We can only fancy her in the fireman's helmet, in the crew of the life-boat, or wielding a policeman's club, at the loss of some of that fineness which is the distinguishing quality of her sex. The Molly Pitchers and Grace Darlings are only examples of the sublime self-forgetfulness of women in great emergencies.

It's much the same in other ways. Women turn to the strength, skill and judgment of men in the crises of life.

One of the most common statements made in the letters grateful women write to Dr. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y., is this: "I owe my life to Dr. Pierce." These women have found themselves in great danger. They have appealed without avail to local physicians. They have counseled in vain with women advisers. The best that had been done for them was just to keep them afloat in the sea of disease with strength visibly failing, in the hope that the man who had strength and skill to save them might be found.

WOMAN'S APPEAL ANSWERED.

Hundreds of thousands of women have appealed to Dr. Pierce, for relief from womanly ills and not one has appealed in vain. The use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription supplemented by the medical advice of Dr. Pierce has been the means of cure to this vast army of women suffering from diseases peculiar to the sex.

"I wish to tell you the benefit I received from using your remedies," writes Mrs. Alice Soncrant, of 261 W. Harrison Street, Chicago, Ills. "Two years ago I was taken with a severe pain in the left ovary and side. Tried several different remedies, but nothing helped me. I got so bad I could scarcely walk across the floor or do work of any kind. One day an old neighbor lady came in to see me, and told me to try Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. She said she knew it would help me, as it had saved her life. When the doctors had given her up and said they could do nothing for her she said she began to take Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and it cured her. So I got a bottle of the 'Favorite Prescription' and one of 'Golden Medical Discovery,' and began taking them. Before I had taken one bottle of each I was so much better I could do all my own work, and that is a good deal, as I am the mother of four small children. Three bottles of the 'Favorite Prescription' and one of 'Golden Medical Discovery' cured me. I have not been sick since then. I think your 'Favorite Prescription' is a wonderful medicine for women."

Such cures as that of Mrs. Soncrant are many, and they speak for the power of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription better than the most eloquent words of praise. The test of a medicine is, what has it done for women? By that test "Favorite Prescription" invites woman's verdict. On the testimony of trustworthy women, "Favorite Prescription" has saved life where physicians had given up all hope. It has cured the most stubborn and obstinate forms of womanly disease. It has banished pain, restored the appetite, induced refreshing sleep, given color to the cheeks and roundness to the form.

WOMEN WHO CANNOT BE CURED.

There are few women for whom no perfect cure is possible. The number of such women has been reduced to a minimum by the practical experience of Dr. Pierce. Of the hundreds of thousands of women who have appealed to Dr. Pierce for counsel in connection with his "Favorite Prescription," only two in every hundred have failed of a perfect and permanent cure. But even this two per cent. of incurables have gratefully recorded a great improvement in their condition; relief from pain and a restoration to family enjoyments.

No sick woman should be discouraged by her condition, no matter how long standing her ailment may be, or how utterly all other means and medicines have failed to cure. The greater number of cures effected by "Favorite Prescription" are cures of chronic and complicated diseases which have baffled the skill of local physicians and proved intractable to all other treatment.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription makes weak women strong and sick women well. It establishes regularity, dries disagreeable and weakening drains, heals inflammation and ulceration, and cures female weakness. It is the greatest preparative for maternity, giving womanly health and strength and making baby's advent practically painless.

A GREAT FREE OFFER.

Sick women are invited to consult Dr. Pierce, by letter, free. All correspondence is held in sacred confidence, and womanly confidences are guarded by strict professional privacy. Address Dr. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

There is no similar offer of free consultation by letter or free medical advice, which has behind it an institution such as the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, Buffalo, N. Y., to which for over thirty years Dr. Pierce has been chief consulting physician, assisted by a medical staff of nearly a score of specialists in the treatment and cure of womanly diseases.

"Favorite Prescription" contains no alcohol, neither opium, cocaine, nor any other narcotic. It is purely a vegetable preparation and cannot disagree with the weakest constitution.

Some dealers for the sake of the little more profit paid by inferior preparations, will try and sell the customer a substitute for "Favorite Prescription" as being "just as good." "Just as good" medicines do not have the cures to their credit which make women hail "Favorite Prescription" as a "Godsend to women." Don't barter the substance for the shadow.

Divided the Remedy.

The Philadelphia Record tells a story of a physician of that city who was called to see an old Irishman and his wife, down with colds. He advised quinine and whiskey as an antidote. "You must both take it," he said. "Take it every three hours—two grains of quinine and a swallow of whiskey." The next day he called again. The man was up and about, but his wife was in bed. "Did you follow my instructions?" asked the doctor.

"To the letther," replied the husband.

"How much quinine have you left?" was the next question.

"Sure, Oi t'ink she have taken th' whole av, it," said the man.

"And did you take it too?" asked the doctor.

"Divil th' bit," was the reply. "Begorrah, it kept me busy takin' th' whiskey every time she took a pill, an sure she's in bed and Oi'm up."

MYSTERIOUS SHOOTING AFFRAY.

An Altoona Young Man Probably Murdered at Connellsville.

Wm. West Jr., aged about 20 years, son of Wm. West Sr., of Altoona, is in the hospital at Connellsville in a dying condition, he having been shot by himself or by a young man named David Maxwell. The senior West received a telegram Thursday evening from Maxwell asking West to meet him at the depot on the arrival of the 9 o'clock train in Altoona. West did so and was told by Maxwell that his son Will was dead from a revolver wound inflicted by h mself, and said that he himself was suffering from a wound in the arm. West took him to the hospital where the bullet was extracted, after which Maxwell was taken to the police station to await investigation of the shooting of West.

It seems that West and Maxwell had been employed in the glass factory at Altoona, and that during the second week of January West left home without telling where he was going, and Maxwell said that he left in a couple of days afterwards to hunt West. He followed him to Philadelphia, to Baltimore to Newport News and then to Pittsburg and finally met him Thursday in the Baltimore and Ohio depot in Connellsville. They took breakfast in a restaurant back of the depot. Shortly afterward they met two other men and the four ran around until noon. After dinner they crossed the river into New Haven, and a few words then passed between Maxwell and West. West then turned back over the bridge and went to Connellsville, with the understanding that about 3 o'clock he was to meet the other three men along the river shore at New Haven. At the appointed time when West returned the other men were along the river shore and M[illegible] Maxwell, who tells this story, then said that without any apparent reason West opened fire on him but his first shot missed. Maxwell then turned his back toward West, who fired second shot, the bullet striking Maxwell in the arm. West then came over and tried to squeeze the bullet out of the arm, but Maxwell said, "get away; you had no business to shoot me. It was cowardly to shoot me in the back anyhow." The three men sat down and noticed West fill his revolver with cartridges and the next thing they heard a shot and saw West fall with a bullet in his head.

Word from Connellsville does not tally with Maxwell's statement. Maxwell will be held for full investigation of the case.

A Fatal Fire Accident.

A distressing accident occurred at the home of Geo. W. and Annie R. Curtin, at Tyrone, Thursday, which resulted in the death of their youngest child, Esther Marguerite, aged 2 years, 2 month and 6 days.

It has been the rule of the Curtin home to permit their small children to sleep late as possible in the morning and Thursday little Marguerite remained in bed until near 10 o'clock. About that hour an elder sister of the child who was in the same room quickly ran down stairs, but was so frightened that she could not speak. Mrs. Curtin, divining that something serious was the matter, at once ran up stairs and was horrified at the sight presenting itself to her as she entered the room. The clothing of her babe was on fire and almost totally burned from her little body. The mother quickly picked the child up and wrapped her apron round it to extinguish the flames, but it was too late to save its life. It was burned to a crisp almost from head to foot.

As Mrs. Curtin clasped her child in her arms it uttered a single scream and at once lapsed into unconsciousness, in which condition it remained until death resulted at about 1:30 in the afternoon. Little Marguerite was a bright child and the idol of the household. It is not known certainly how the child's clothing caught fire but it is supposed that in some way she got hold of a match and ignited it.

Three Years in the Navy.

Harry A. McCaleb, in the uniform of the United States navy, arrived home Thursday morning. He is a son of Joseph McCaleb and his home is at Nittany, Centre county. He enlisted in the navy 3 years ago. He was on the battleships Indiana and Minneapolis. He was on the former ship during the battle in Santiago harbor, He has been to Japan and China. He was afterwards transferred to the U. S. S. Prairie, which arrived in Boston a short time ago. Harry then went to New York, where he and about 24 short term men were honorably discharged.

Harry states that he will not reinlist.

A VERY INSTRUCTIVE ENTERTAINMENT.

Frank C. Kunkle Lectured on 10th P. V. While in Philippines.

Friday evening Frank C. Kunkle, of State College, who was a member of the Tenth Pennsylvania Volunteers, gave a very interesting and instructive lecture on things that happened while he was in the Philippines. Mr. Kunkle is a good speaker and those who were in the rear of the Court House could hear and understand every word he said. The pictures that were shown were beautiful and well gotten up. The large audience that greeted Mr. Kunkle showed their appreciation by repeated applause. The Coleville band was present and rendered some beautiful music in their usual excellent manner.

Mallory & Taylor had charge of the picture part of the entertainment, and as usual, when they have anything to do with an entertainment, their part was carried out in first-class style.

Co. B. realized a nice sum by the entertainment which will go a great ways toward meeting the expenses of Memorial day.

Mr. McKinley's Journey.

WASHINGTON, March 23.—Representative Meyer, of Louisiana, has presented to the president the invitation to stop at New Orleans during his trip to the Pacific coast. As the president will leave here on April 30, May 2 probably will be spent in New Orleans.

The president also promised to visit Austin if his itinerary through Texas can be so arranged. After leaving New Orleans the party will stop at Galveston and Houston, and the expectation is that a meeting with President Diaz, of Mexico, will be arranged at El Paso.

At San Francisco the party will stop a week in connection with the events attending the launching of the battleship Ohio. On the return trip route the party will visit Yellowstone park, and thence probably take a run down to Denver. A sail by steamer down the lakes from Duluth to Buffalo probably will be included in the trip.

After the president returns from his Western trip he is going to New England. He has accpted an invitatiou to be present at the Harvard commencement exercises at Cambridge, Mass., June 26. He is expected to visit Worcester, Concord, Boston and perhaps other places.

Three Cent Trolley Scheme.

A gigantic trolley scheme, which is to give Philadelphia three-cent fares and connect it directly with New York by means of an independent line of electric railway, is being worked up by a number af capitalists and trolley promoters, with A. L. Johnson, of New York, and Robert E. Wright, of Allentown, at their head. The plan if successful, contemplates bringing the new line directly down Broad street. Both Mr. Johnson and Mr. Wright talked freely about their plans Monday night, and appeared confident that they would ultimately succeed in their efforts, which will be supported by novel and energetic methods of campaigning.

Mr. Johnson, who is a brother of Tom L. Johnson, of Cleveland, O., said at Philadelphia Monday night that he had charters and the right of way for trolley lines from New York to Philadelphia and from Allentown, Pa., to Philadelphia. He declares that the fare from Philadelphia to New York will not be more than 50 cents and the rate to Alientown the same.

"The roads will be laid with 95 pound rails," said Mr. Johnson, "and the cars will be run on a system guaranteed by the General Electric and Westinghouse companies at a rate of 50 miles an hour.

"The Philadelphia, Trenton and Lehigh Valley charter, enabling us to carry both passengers and freight, will include a line starting from Ogontz, in the northern suburbs of Philadelphia, and entering Morrisville on the Delaware river, opposite Trenton. Thence the line will cross the bridge, where a connection will be made with the Trenton, Lawrenceville and Princeton railroad, already in operation.

"I do not care to disclose what course we will take to reach New York city, but I hope to be there before the snow flies. We have 5 places in that city where we can make a ferry landing, but the opposition we expect to encounter will be so great that it is best not to give too many points to our opponents."

Wednesday afternoon when Mrs. Wilson and Mrs. Jacob Zong were returning from spending the day at Henry Zeigler's, Mrs. Zong became quite sick and fell down unconscious. The section men came along from work and brought her back on the hand-car and then carried her into Wieland's store, while Dr. Kidder was hastily summoned. Restoratives were applied and in a few hours she was revived and then taken to her home at Rock Hill. She has been suffering with heart trouble for some time and the walk overtaxed her strength.—Centre Hall Reporter.

The Servant Girl Problem.

A servant girl of the period has come forward in Punxsutawney. She is as fully developed as any of the humorous papers picture her, and the Punxsutawney News tells of her actions in the following language:

"Joe Bloom and wife, a Hebrew family, living on Pine street, had a whole lot of trouble this week on account of their 'hired girl.' She was a fiery, flanderous Slavish girl, who undertook to govern Bloom's household without the consent of the governed. Bloom and his wife objected and tried to discharge her, but that did no good, for she would not be discharged. She stayed right there and the family had to submit to her rulings, but there finally came a time when the Blooms could no longer bear the imposter. That was one cold night, when she locked herself in Mr. and Mrs. Bloom's cosy, warm bed chamber, and informed them through the keyhole that they might sleep in her room, where there was no fire, for a few nights, and see how they liked it. This was more than the Blooms could stand, so they appealed to policeman Palmer for assistance to rid the place of her. Palmer went down and, after much persuasion, induced her to hand in her resignation, which was promptly accepted.

An odious comparison: Governor Stone, of Pennsylvania, with Governor Odell, of New York.

Mr. Carnegie has probably long ago found out that there are more cursings for a refusal of money than blessings for a donation.

Hon. Grover Cleveland is now the only living ex-President, and in the opinion of at least one man he is the greatest, if not the only, living statesman.

Denver prohibitionists have nominated a municipal ticket composed exclusively of women. It would be interesting to see how a big town would be run by women.

The question is asked whether, in 1902, Colonel Roosevelt will write testimonials for the United States Senate for excellence as a rest cure or a fine field for the exercise of strenuous life.

William Penn once wrote that the "American weather was constant only in its inconstancy." Judging from what we have seen of weather in the recent past we are inclined to agree with him.

Flory R. Barker, of Ebensburg, the Quay leader of Cambria county, is the latest machine possibility for the State Treasurer nomination. There is ample time for other entries before the race is called. Next!

If some of the gentlemen who have expressed such friendly sentiments toward Hon. Benjamin Harrison dead had felt those sentiments in 1892 the presidential election of that year would probably have resulted differently.

The army chaplains are protesting by shoals against being assigned to Philippine duty. They joined the army for a quiet home and naturally hate to have to go out to minister to the benighted heathen—especially when the heathen have guns and shoot to kill.

Americans are the only people in the world who throw open their workshops to foreigners, reveal all the processes and methods to them and then sit back, serenely confident of their ability to improve on their methods before their rivals can make use of those they have imparted to them.

Senator Platt, of Connecticut, says that he is opposed to the annexation of Cuba and never expects to see any conditions arise that would cause him to change his sentiment. He is not alone in his views; there are many who hold the same opinion concerning Cuban annexation—in Cuba.

It is to be hoped that Mr. Carnegie has taken good care to expend that New York library fund of his through some other agency than that of the Tammany organization. If Philadelphia is to become the object of a similar benefaction through the philanthropic ex-steel king, it would be equally prudent for him to arrange for the expenditure of the gift independent of the Ashbridge syndicate.

ABUSES OF THE JURY SYSTEM AND WITNESS BOX.

Justice Brewer of the United States Supreme Court, in a recent address before the students of Yale University on the abuses of the jury system, dwelt particularly upon its nnmerous glaring imperfections and criticized with severity the abominations identified with its administration in the courts of the country at large. "As at present administered," the eminent jurist declares, "it is little less than a relic of a semi-barbarous age." Continuing, Justice Brewer says:

"The juror is treated little better than a criminal. He is locked up at night and is given little more pay than a day laborer. He is compelled to listen to the wrangle of lawyers. I hope that the time will come when the juror will be treated like a man, when he will receive the pay of a business man. I also hope that the present system of conviction will give way to one in which the concurrence of a reasonable number of jurors shall determine the verdict."

It is claimed by those who indorse Justice Brewer's conception of the defects in our existing jury system and his opinion of the impositions applied in its administration that he might have gone further and shown up the disreputable practices of a certain class of lawyers who make it a business of "packing" juries and who are known in the profession as "good jury lawyers." Such abuses of the jury system have become so common that they are looked upon as "sharp practice," and the public does not stop to realize that through them justice is thwarted and the jury system becomes a farce and a reproach to law and society.

The recent enactment by the lawmakers at Harrisburg of the notorious McCarrell Jury bill gives to the "good jury lawyers" a wider field for operation and what is worse it legalizes what must be regarded, in spite of the sanction of the law, a corrupt and vicious practice. The McCarrell Jury bill, by the way, was a machine measure and became a statute through machine manipulation. Its sole purpose was, and only aim is to provide protection for machine minions whose zealous activities in machine service exceeds the limits of lawful privilege. It is with the "ripper" legislation in progress a shining example of machine reform process.

But to return to the subject. In the course of his address Justice Brewer referred to the treatment of witnesses, which is a more grievous and outrageous abuse than the treatment of jurors. He says:

"It is one of the duties of American citizen-hip to perform the duties of a witness when summoned into court, although in the present system the witness is treated like a liar and is browbeaten by opposing lawyers."

The ill treatment and abuse of witnesses by arrogant and domineering lawyers—only one of that class misuse their professional prerogatives—can be corrected by resolute and fair-minded judges, for the judge is in absolute control of his court and his authority comprehends the deportment of all connected with the machinery of his court and those who participate in its sessions as interested parties or spectators. Judges can remedy this evil and the judge that permits the bar bullies to have free and unrestrained license to browbeat and insult witnesses, as is too frequently the case in many of our courts, is a judge who fails to appreciate the dignity and honor of his high official station and is a reproach to the judiciary of which he is by no means a creditable representative.

While it is wholly improbable that the people would ever consent to the abolishment of the jury system and equally improbable that any effort to this end will ever be made, there is, nevertheless, a growing sentiment in favor of the reconstruction of the present system or a reform in its administration. The abuses of the jury system calls for statutory remedies. The indignities to which witnesses are subjected requires no legislation to correct, judges of the courts alone are responsible for the existence of this crying evil, they can suppress it.

SUPPOSE—

Suppose that the Democrats elect the next Governor of Pennsylvania. It is more than a possible result, as they have twice elected a Governor within the last twenty years, and the present disruption in the Republican party by reckless and revolutionary legislation to gratify the lust of power and plunder, points to the election of a Democratic Governor next year as not only possible but quite probable.

Suppose that the Democrats elect a majority of the next Legislature, or failing to elect a distinct Democratic majority in both branches, they imitate the methods of the present Republican machine and debauch a number of Republican Senators and Representatives to co-operate with them to make their power absolute in the legislative and executive departments of the government.

Suppose that they then enact laws overthrowing the municipal governments of Philadelphia, Pittsburg, Allegheny, Scranton and all the third class cities of the State, and empower the Governor to appoint, without the confirmation of the Senate, Recorders, or Commissioners, or Generalissimos, or any other titled officials to exercise all the powers of the present Mayors of the cities, with absolute authority over all the varied municipal departments, and declare by law that these despotic and revolutionary governments shall continue in office for ten years or twenty years, without the right of the people to have any voice whatever in the selection of those who govern them.

What would the people of Philadelphia and of all the second and third class cities of Pennsylvania do about it?

If the present "Ripper" bill that has been approved by the Governor shall be sustained by the courts, every supposition hereinbefore presented would not only be possible, but would be invited; and if one party shall thus successfully defy the people in the interest of power and plunder, why may not another party imitate the example? Never before in the history of Pennsylvania legislation, bad as its record has been at times, has any Legislature so openly, recklessly and defiantly sown to the wind and invited the whirlwind.—Philadelphia Times.

A RAILROAD MAN'S PRAYER.

An old railroad man having been converted, was asked to lead in prayer. The following was the response: "O Lord, now that I have flagged thee, lift up my feet from the rough road of life and plant them safely on the deck of the train of salvation. Let me use the safety lamp known as prudence, make all the couplings in the train with the strong link of thy love and let my hand lamp be the Bible, and, heavenly Father, keep all switches closed that lead off the sidings, especially those with a blind end. O Lord, if it be thy pleasure, have every semaphore block along the line show the white line of hope that I may make the run of life without stopping. And, Lord, give us the Ten Commandments for a schedule, and when I have finished the run on schedule time and pulled into the great dark station of death may thou, the Superintendent of the universe, say, 'Well done, thou good and faithful servant; come and sign the pay-roll and receive your check for eternal happiness.'"—Railroad Gazette.

The statement made that Attorney-General Elkin is identified with the gang who are attempting, through the legislature, to obtain possession of the valuable coal lands under navigable waters in the State, will surprise no one who is familiar with Elkin's past. And he is the machine choice for Governor. The machine is to be congratulated upon the wisdom of its selection. No more fitting successor to the present apology for a Governor could be made. These two statesmen (?) are cut from the same cloth, but its shoddy and rank at that.

The signs of the times indicate that Judge Love will serve out his term as Judge of the courts of Centre county.

RURAL FREE MAIL DELIVERY.

The introduction of the rural mail delivery system is being carried on by the government as rapidly as conditions and circumstances will permit. Before long all mails will be delivered in the country as well as in the towns and cities. By the end of the present fiscal year, on July 1, it is estimated, upon information obtained from the Post-office Department, that there will be established 4,300 rural free delivery routes, and within the next year this number will be doubled, making in all above 8,000 routes. With this number the country will be only fairly well covered, but it will not be many years before this service will be extended to every rural county in every State.

With the extension of the new system the fourth-class post-offices are beginning to disappear. The older offices are being abolished much more rapidly than the new ones are being established. When the Post-office Department began creating rural free delivery routes, which interfered with fourth-class offices, considerable opposition was aroused, coming from the patrons of the offices, as well as the postmasters, who lost their positions as a result of the new system. Now this is changed, at least so it is claimed by the department authorities, and when a postmaster antagonizes the extension of the service he is usually threatened by his patrons with the withdrawal of their patronage at the store he usually conducts unless he desists. This has a salutory effect and thus opposition so far as the postmaster is concerned is speedily removed. The rural free mail delivery has come to stay and its operations throughout the entire country is but a matter of time.

A LEADER AMONG NEWSPAPERS.

It is not an idle prediction we make when we claim that the "Pittsburg Dispatch" will continue during this year, and years to follow, to maintain its front rank among the leading newspapers of the country. The "Dispatch" has been and will doubtless remain foremost among the journals of Western Pennsylvania. The news of the world is found in every issue of the "Dispatch" and is presented in a style so attractive and interesting that justifies the statement that the best news-gatherers in the profession are in the service of the "Dispatch."

The Sunday edition of the "Dispatch" is the leader in its line and every weekly issue asserts its superior standard. The large and steadily increasing circulation of the "Dispatch" is evidence that it is what it claims to be. Among all the papers that come to our office we regard the "Dispatch" as easily the peer of the best. Its news department comprehends the daily happenings at home and abroad and its editorial staff is unquestionably composed of capable writers.

Russia has developed a mania for twisting the tail of the British lion that may prove costly if persisted in. John Bull has troubles, but he is by no means as bad off as he is pictured by his enemies. Russia is suffering just now with serious internal troubles and it would seem that she could hardly afford to have a knock-a-bout with another power—even Japan.

Professor G. F. Wright, of Oberlin College, who has recently returned from a geological exploration, says Siberia was formerly at the bottom of the sea. It's dollars to doughnuts that there are thousands of poor devils, subjects of the Czar, who wouldn't object to its being there again, and for keeps.

It is said that a clause in the army appropriation made by the late Congress is the first official acknowledgement by any government of the employment of spies. The clause referred to appropriates the money to employ "interpreters, spies, or guides," for the army in the Philippines.

No public official ever loses anything by showing that he owns a backbone that can be made good and stiff when there is occasion.

MACHINE JUDICIARY.

In connection with Fayette county's democratic machine Judge, Umbel by name, though not by nature, nor in monetary aspirations as his association with the coal land grabbers plot would indicate, the North American in Wednesday's edition gave expression to some scathing truisms in regard to a faction of the State Judiciary and the Quay machine. It pointed out how necessary to machine success was judicial support and stated that Judge Umbel was a welcome recruit to the coterie of machine judges of whom Judge Love and Archbald are conspicuous members. In conclusion the North American said:

"Happily for Pennsylvania, rotten as it is politically, the Courts as a whole are exceptionally pure. It is the rule for our Judges to be not only honest but high-minded men, true to the best judicial traditions. Thus it happens that when a Judge appears who falls below the standard, he becomes conspicuous as an evil exception, and no man respects him because of the office which he holds and discredits."

"The Archbalds and Loves and Umbels can do great harm, but they are compelled to live apart from their honored official associates. The moral capacity of the people of Pennsylvania remains unimpaired where the bench is concerned. It is upon that fortunate fact that the thoughtful rely for the ultimate defeat of the Quay machine's deliberate and systematic endeavors to degrade the bench, State and Federal."

THE ROLL ALMOST COMPLETE.

The law providing that war vessels of certain classes shall be named for the States of the Union has been complied with to an extent not generally understood, no fewer than thirty-one States being represented in the navy list, as follows: Alabama, Arkansas, California, Colorado, Florida, Georgia, Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Kentucky, Maine, Massachusetts, Michigan, Minnesota, Missouri, Nebraska, Nevada, New Hampshire, New Jersey, New York, Ohio, Oregon, Pennsylvania Rhode Island, South Dakota, Texas, Vermont, Virginia, West Virginia, Wisconsin and Wyoming. The cruiser New York, however, was named in honor of the city instead of the State of New York. The States not yet represented on the navy list of fighting ships are Connecticut, Delaware, Idaho, Louisiana, Maryland, Mississippi, Montana, North Carolina, North Dakota, South Carolina, Kansas, Tennessee, and Washington. Their turns will doubtless come later, and at our present rate of warship construction it will be only a few years before all the States will have warships named in their honor.

A SURE WINNER EVERY TIME.

It is not so much brilliancy of intellect and versatility of resource as persistency of effort and constancy of purpose that give success. When we see a young man that labor cannot weary, whom drudgery cannot disgust or dishearten, who meets reverses with an erect unflinching bearing, we know that he will win. There is no keeping him down.—Success.

One trouble with the revival of the shirt waist man this summer lies in his inability to make his shirt waists over. Our solution to this difficulty is: Marry a seamstress. Wouldn't that relieve the situation?

Harry Fehl Badly Injured.

Harry Fehl, while dragging logs for the Linden Hall Lumber Co., fell in such a way as to get one of his lower limbs under the heavy timber, 15 feet of which passed over the member. The foot was dislocated, and the ankle and lower portion of the leg badly lacerated. Dr. Kidder was taken to the camp, which is several miles out from Linden Hall, on an engine Wednesday night, and dressed the wounds. Mr. Fehl is a young married man and lives near Aaronsburg.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

From our Regular Correspondent.)

Washington, March 25th, 1901.

President McKinley has talked with several members of Congress who have been in Cuba since the adjournment and from what they have told him, as well as from other information he has received from trustworthy sources, he has expressed himself as being satisfied that things are slowly working around all right.

Representative Hamilton, of Mich., who has just returned from Cuba, said of his observations while on the island: "I am of the opinion that the Platt amendments will ultimately be accepted by the Cubans, and that there will be no trouble between Cuba and the U. S. There is no mistaking the feeling of the people, however, for independence. Their hearts are set on it and you hear it talked everywhere. If difficulties arise it will be because the people are easily influenced by their leaders, and small factions or parties can attract large followings of impulsive, impetuous people, if the right man is at the head. I think the people can be convinced in time that the Platt amendments do not hamper their independence and that our declarations therein contained are only in line with the Monroe doctrine, as understood by all the world."

The resignation of Attorney Gen. Griggs has been formally accepted by President McKinley to take effect the 31st inst., and Mr. Griggs will, much to the regret of the President and all his colleagues, next week resume the practice of law. Notwithstanding several circumstantial stories to the contrary, it can be stated on the highest authority that no other change in the Cabinet is contemplated for the immediate future. In other words, no other member of the cabinet has announced any intention of resigning.

Should the republicans of the next Congress use the tariff to put a curb upon trusts? That is substantially the question asked by Representative Babcock, of Wisconsin, when he introduced his bill in the House to repeal the tariff on manufactured steel and iron. Mr. Babcock, who is now in Washington, is still asking that question, and he is going to add emphasis by including tin plate and plate glass in his bill before it is reintroduced in the next House. Speaking on the subject Mr. Babcock said: "The republican party is a party of progress. Its great hold upon the people is due to its aggressiveness and its willingness to meet problems. We have now a new and very serious problem before us in the effect of the tariff in creating trusts, and we ought to meet it. I am certain that a large majority of the House favors the bill. When the American protective league gave a banquet recently, and this matter was discussed by one or two speakers, Congressman McCall, of Massachusetts, was cheered to the echo when he predicted that changes in the tariff would have to be made, and that it was best to let such changes be made by the friends of the protective system. I am not an enemy of protection, but I know that the first principle of protection is protection of the people. When I see American manufacturers in a position where they can charge the American people what they see fit, and yet can sell the same goods abroad for a much lower sum, I think it is time for Congress to step in and work a reform. This is the part of wisdom, good judgment and good sense, for if we do not do it, we will presently find that the people have risen in revolt and placed in power a party which is hostile to all kinds of tariff. I would not abate a jot or title of protection where it is needed. All that I contend is that the protective principle, having given a tremendous advantage to the manufacturers, is now being used to the detriment of our own people. I do not think this should be allowed.

Republicans are beginning to realize that congressional action may be necessary to stop the wholesale disfranchisement of voters in Southern states. Senator Burrows, of Mich., who will be chairman of the Senate Committee on Privileges and Elections said on the subject: "The new Maryland ballot law is very likely to bring to the attention of congress various so-called disfranchisement laws, and open up the whole question of representation in Congress on the basis of men who are not legal voters under state laws. Congress does not desire to discuss these subjects, but, in my opinion, the question will be forced upon us for determination by the unwise action of some of the states. We have now before us the example of a great state, endeavoring to disfranchise some 50,000 citizens in order to give one political party control of the legislature. There is no fear of negro domination. That is not the excuse for the law. Certain democrats seek to control the affairs of the state, and to accomplish this purpose to disfranchise a sufficient number of the opposite party.

EX-PRIME MINISTER OF HAWAIIAN ISLANDS

Commends Peruna to His Friends as a Positive Catarrh Remedy.

Hon. Celso Cæsar Moreno, Ex-Prime Minister of Hawaii.

The Hon. Celso Cæsar Moreno, ex-Prime Minister of Hawaii, and projector of the Trans-Pacific cable, 1876, is a distinguished statesman, and the best known Italian in the country. In a letter from Washington, D. C., to the Peruna Medicine Co., he says:

"I can commend your great national catarrh cure, Peruna, to my friends throughout the country as a safe, reliable medicine. I know of no other tonic that will build a person up as well as Peruna. It is a positive cure for the universal disease, catarrh, and those who will try this remarkable medicine will find a sure cure.

Very respectfully, Celso Cæsar Moreno.

Charles B. Royer, 909 W. Washington treet, Morristown, Pa., writes:

Malinda Royer.

"My oldest daughter Malinda Royer, is cured of deafness by Peruna. When she began to take Peruna we had to go up close to her and talk very loud to make her hear.

"After taking one-half dozen bottles of Peruna she can hear you in any part of the room. She can hear an ordinary conversation."

Thousands of people have catarrh who would be surprised to know it, because it has been called some other name than catarrh. The fact is, catarrh is catarrh wherever located; and another fact which is of equally great importance, that Peruna cures catarrh wherever located.

Catarrh is an American disease. Fully one-half of the people are afflicted more or less with it in some form. Previous to the discovery of Peruna, catarrh was considered well nigh incurable. Since the introduction of Peruna to the medical profession thousands of cases are cured annually.

Mr. W. M. Holland, of Hartwell, Ga., proprietor of the Hartwell Tin Works, writes of Peruna as follows:

"I am more than pleased with the benefits derived from Peruna. The winter of 1899 my weight was 150 pounds. I used several bottles during the winter and now weigh 211.

"I have recommended it to all my friends both as a tonic and catarrh cure. If I had been lucky enough to have seen it several years ago Peruna would have saved me much inconvenience. I can never be too thankful to you for the benefits received from your valuable remedy. My mother has also been wonderfully benefited by your valuable remedy."

The facts as near as your correspondent can get, are: On last Sunday night; a young girl by the name of Dora Nathan, was to church, and on her way home after church about 9 o'clock in a lonely and unfrequented path, she was assaulted and the attempted rape committed. This young lady, fortunately and unfortunately had with her a razor, which she used pretty freely on her assailant, Toby Wetzel, as he is familiarly known, cutting a large gash on the top of his head, and other places about the face. The young man was pretty badly used up and Dr. Frank was called to attend to his wounds. On Monday morning this young girl made the information, and in the afternoon Constable Leitzel arrested him, and when brought before the justice, waived a hearing and plead guilty to the charges made, the case being not bailable before a Justice of the Peace the Squire made out a commitment to the county jail. When Wetzel attacked her, he was partly disguised, by having a blanket thrown around him, but this girl of nerve, tore the blanket from his face, and revealed the face of her assailant.

DANIEL HESS ROTE DEAD.

After a long and painful illness one of our most respected and useful citizens, Ex-Justice of the Peace, Daniel H. Rote departed this life on last Monday, March 25th, at about the hour of 7 o'clock p. m. at the age of 59 years and 4 days.

Squire Rote as he was usually called was a great sufferer from childhood, having been deprived of the use of one of his lower limbs since he was four years of age. In later years he fell a victim to other bodily diseases which increased his pain and suffering almost beyond forbearance. Being a man of very strong constitution and possessing a large supply of will power he met his daily enemy with but very little murmur or complaint. For quite a number of his earlier years Mr. Rote was one of Haines townships most prominent school teachers a fact which can be proven by a number of Centre county's rising and most promising young business and professional men who stand today as living evidence of the squires early training. During the time intervening between the years 1884 and 1894 he acted as Justice of the Peace for Haines township being elected by the Republican party to which party deceased was always a close adherent. He received also a very liberal support from the Democratic party thereby, showing their preference for the Republican choice, and, therefore, assuring his election, notwithstanding the township usually being strongly Democratic.

During the administration of his office deceased as a dispenser of Justice, in full meaning of the word—had very few cases come before him that were not amicably adjusted before they left his office. Truly he was a peace making Justice notwithstanding being a man of unusual great firmness and determination. About 20 years ago Mr. Rote quit the profession of teaching and took up the jewelry and watch repairing business, making himself very useful in this capacity to the people of Penns and adjoining valley's, thereby in a few years time building up quite a lucrative trade. From the fact that Mr. Rote was named by a great many as the "handy man" of Aaronsburg, the vacancy which is caused by his removal can not easily be filled, the family has lost a kind supporter and the community in which he resided a useful citizen.

Those left to survive him are a wife and an adopted daughter, two brothers John C., of Axe Mann, this county, and Thos. F., of Stephenson county, Illinois; and an aged mother 86 years old, who visited the departed almost daily during his illness.

The funeral will be held from his late residence on West Main street on Thursday forenoon March 28th, when the remains will be taken to the Reformed church cemetery for interment. Rev. F. W. Brown, of the Reformed church the family's pastor will conduct the services.

Squire Rote has gone—peace to his ashes. From a life long friend.

New Counterfeit Bank Note.

A counterfeit $5 bank note has been reported to the secret service operatives. It is on the National Iron bank, of New Jersey, of the series of 1882, check letter 'A," charter No, 1113, Tillman, register; Morgan, treasurer, and bearing a portrait of James A. Garfield. The picture is done in scolloped chocolate, including the seal, which is serial No. T, 665,948, bank No. 2,073. The counterfeit, while very deceptive, is made of two pieces of paper, between which there are silk threads. The spelling in several places is very bad.

The Country Editor.

Perusal of the columns of papers published in districts far removed from the bustle and every day excitement of the cities is liable to make the reader believe that the life of the country editor is "one grand, sweet song." Here, indeed, seems to be an individual who pursues the even tenor of his way, quietly gathering up the neighborhood gossip, scraps of information, and at all the times keeping a watchful eye on the interest of the community. It is his aim to issue a paper of personal interest, and therefor an epidemic of mumps, whooping cough, measles or grip, furnishes him with opportunities to publish the names of most of his subscribers. With easy grace he mentions the smile on the face of the "happy father"—for some reason the happy mothers are rarely mentioned and the passing away of an old citizen provides the occasion for an eloquent eulogy. The quilting bees, barn raising, weddings and other events of similar importance call for sallies of wit and wisdom, and a dog fight is given the prominence it deserves.

But the path of the country editor is not always strewn with roses. Many subscribers are forgetful, and reminders that are in arrears are often in vain. There are times when even the subscribers who pay in fire wood or farm produce fail to materialize. Hence the occasional wails and appeals from the sanctum and occasional suspension of a week's issue. The country editor who bumps up against such troubles is deserving of a better fate. He is one of the forces of civilization, and too often he is handicapped by adverse circumstances.—Ex.

A Man with Many Alias's.

Wm. West, the young man who was shot at Connellsville, died at the hospital in that place Sunday afternoon. The case now assumes a very serious aspect, and Maxwell, with the others who were present at the time the shooting occurred will be tried for murder. Saturday a commonwealth charge was made against Williams and Maxwell before Alderman Ramey, of Altoona, for carrying concealed weapons and, in default of $300 bail each, they were committed to jail at Hollidaysburg to await trial at the next term of criminal court, in June. But a warrant has been served upon them to answer for the more serious charge of murder. Maxwell has many alias's. In 1897, as D. W. Maddox he was arrested in Lock Haven for burglary and larceny and while awaiting trial broke jail or attempted to do so. He plead guilty to jailbreaking, and was sentenced to 2 years in the penitentiary. He also served a term in Sing Sing for a crime committed in New York state. He was also implicated in the robbing of the Hollidaysburg postoffice.

—Harvey Grush, of Paint township, Somerset county, was arrested and locked up in Bedford Thursday morning on the charge of being a suspicious character. He was wanted to answer before Squire M. E. Sell, of Winber, to the charge of statutory arson, and fled from his home during Sunday night, 17th inst., on hearing that a warrant for his arrest had been issued. Thursday morning he foolishly telephoned from Bedford to a friend in Windber, asking his help in identification so as to sell a horse and buggy at Bedford. Through the telephone message Squire Sell learned of his whereabouts, then Constable John Scott proceeded to Bedford and took charge of the man.

Cannot Control our Streams.

The Harris water bill, giving the state board of health almost exclusive control of streams in the state, in order to prevent pollution, which was prepared by the associated health authorities of the state in convention at Harrisburg last January, was defeated in the house. The vote was 12 yeas and 131 nays.

—Mrs. Carrie Nation has signed a contract for six lectures to be given in Cincinnati. She will receive $100 for each of the lectures and all her expenses.

Milton Car Shops the Scene of a Frightful Accident.

The car shops at Milton was the scene of a heartrending accident Friday morning about 10 o'clock. John Troxell and J. B. Lenig were engaged in hoisting a heavy trestle with the crane. When up in the air a pole broke, a portion of which fell on the two men, crushing them to the ground.

Troxell was instantly killed, and Lenig died shortly after. Troxell was about 30 years old and Lenig was about 50.

What makes Troxell's death the more pathetic, is the fact that shortly before the accident occurred Mrs. Troxell gave birth to a child She is in a critical condition. Up to noon she had not been informed of her husband's death.

Lenig's home was at Port Charlton. He and his son had come to Milton on the canal last fall, and were waiting for the water to flow into the canal bed so that they could return home. During the winter they had been working in the car shops.

Opportunity for an Industry.

The following advertisement appears in the current issue of the Iron Age.

"Wanted.—Location for factory manufacturing tacks, small nails, staples, etc., using 1000 tons of steel per year; must have cheap fuel and shipping facilities; state advantages; address W. F. Robertson Steel & Iron Co., Cincinnati, Ohio.

Why not Bellefonte as a location for this factory? The facilities specified are present here and the point would doubtless be an advantageous one for such a concern. It will be noticed that the company advertising does not ask for bonus, free ground, subscriptions to stock or any other similar assistance, at least in its advertisement. It seems to be entirely advantage of location wanted. A prompt and comprehensive presentation of the inviting field right here might be a valuable acquisition to Bellefonte's industrial life.

Charged With Robbery and Assault and Battery.

G. G. Askins, of Lewisburg, was arrested in Williamsport Friday afternoon by Patrolman Smith on a charge of robbery and assault and battery, preferred by Grace Lawrence, of Williamsport. He was taken before Alderman Kellenbach, where he pleaded guilty to the assault and battery charge, and was held for a hearing on the other charge. Miss Lawrence alleges that Askins called to see her several days ago and took from her $90 in cash, a ring, a bracelet and her bank book. Friday morning he called at her residence, on Market street, and, after a brief conversation, it is alleged, he struck her.

—Charles Johnson, a colored prisoner, who was in the custody of an officer and was being taken from Altoona to Hollidaysburg jail Friday afternoon for trespassing on the railroad, leaped headforemost through the car window as the train was approaching the Gaysport depot at a high rate of speed. He struck the ground on his head and rolled down over the embankment, near the engin house, but jumped up and attempted to escape. The officer and another man gave chase and captured him in a field near Gaysport. He was considerably cut about the face and bruised about the body.

He has a Housekeeper.

The bachelor orphan, James S. McKeage, of near Rauchtown, who on Monday sold his live stock because he could not get a wife, will probably soon take a partner for life. It is said that since the sale he has found a woman who suits him. Had the date of McKeage's sale been two days later, it is understood that it would not have occurred.

COMMON PROPERTY.

Public Praise is Public Property. Bellefonte People may Profit by Local Experience.

Grateful people will talk.

Tell their experience for the public good?

Bellefonte citizens praise Doan's Kidney Pills.

Kidney sufferers appreciate this.

They find relief for every kidney ill.

Read what this citizen says:

Mrs. F. Davis, of Logan street, says:—"Doan's Kidney Pills did more towards freeing me from terrible pains in my back than any other medicine ever did. I had taken so many kinds and so many perscriptions without any perceptible gain that I was unprepared for the immediate improvement. I received from taking Doan's Kidney Pills. I read statements about Bellefonte people who had been cured by their use and I got them at F. Potts Green's drug store. After taking them I felt so well that I walked down town with my husband, something I had not done for two years. I highly recommend Doan's Kidney Pills to others suffering from their back and kidneys. I have more confidence in them than in any physician's prescription."

To Drill for Oil.

A company of capitalists have been in the vicinity of Lewisburg for the past week, inspecting several tracts of land with the purpose of leasing the same and putting down several test wells for gas or oil. The men claim to be familiar with oil and gas business, and have the proclivity for "smelling" the fluid. They devoted the most of their time to the land south of Lewisburg, and claim to have found good surface indications on the farms of John A, Gundy, and Prof. W. G. Owens. An effort was made to lease these tracts of land, but as yet the deal has not been consumated. It is the intention of the campany to put down several test wells within two miles of Lewisburg and punch a hole toward China with the hope of finding the enriching fluid.

Identified by his Toe.

An unnatural growth on the great toe of a corpse has solved the mystery at Whetham. The body which one day last week was found floating in the river there was on Thursday, dug from its grave, and Manley Ardary, of Kylertown, Clearfield county, it has been learned, identified it as that of his brother John, who last September escaped from the County Home at Clearfield.

The face of the dead man was too much decomposed to prove his identity, but an odd growth of bone on the great toe of the left foot demonstrated to Ardary's complete satisfaction that the dead man was his brother.

Charged With Murder.

Joseph Sands and his mother, Maggie Sands, of Morris township, Clearfield county, have been arrested on the charge of murdering a young child. The mother alleges that Joseph choked the child, while the neighbors say that the mother broke its neck. The coroner is investigating.

SUPREME IN ITS BEAUTY.

Pan-American Exposition to be a Magnificent Surprise.

WILL OPEN ON MAY 1, 1901

Birdseye View of the Great Group of Splendid Architectural Works—A Wonderful Setting of Fountains, Pools, Plants and Flowers.

POWER FURNISHED BY NIAGARA FALLS

It is promised for the Pan-American Exposition that it will surpass in beauty any previous exposition in the world's history. It is also expected that it will outrival its predecessors in many other ways, for at no time have such wondrous achievements in all arts, such perfection in the hundreds of trades, been attained. But the purpose of this article is to treat, in a general way, of the plan of the Exposition, the symmetry of arrangement and the exterior beauty that represents the careful expenditure of several millions of dollars. Accompanying this article is a birdseye view of the Exposition plot, showing the magnificent work in its complete state. The view is from the south and shows an area one mile and a quarter long and half a mile wide, there being 350 acres in the inclosure. In the immediate foreground is a portion of Delaware Park, one of the famous beauty spots of Buffalo. The view shows the Park Lake, with the North Bay at the left, and in the left foreground, south of the bay, may be seen a portion of the Albright Gallery of Art, a beautiful permanent building of white marble, the gift of John J. Albright of Buffalo, and costing over $400,000. North of the Bay is the New York State Building, also a permanent structure of marble. These two buildings are in the style of Greek temples, one containing reminders of the Parthenon and the other resembling somewhat the Erechtheum upon the Acropolis at Athens.

Between the North Bay and the Lake the City of Buffalo has built at large expense a new and beautiful bridge of heavy masonry, known as the Bridge of the Three Americas. This bridge carries the broad thoroughfare which leads from the main southern entrance to the approaches of the Exposition, as seen in the foreground just north of the Lake. On the northern shore of the Lake is situated the life saving station erected by the Federal Government where daily exhibitions will be given by a crew of ten men showing the uses of modern life saving apparatus as employed upon our coasts. Hidden from view, upon the southern bank of the Lake, a beautiful casino and boathouse has also been built by the City of Buffalo for Exposition uses.

The symmetrical grouping of buildings will be at once noted by the observer. Beginning at the formal approach, just north of the Lake, the eye follows northward between two rows of ornamental columns to what is known as the Forecourt. East of this are the State and Foreign buildings, forming in themselves a very interesting feature of the Exposition. Near these also are the buildings for the special ordnance displays representing the products of several hundred manufactories in this line of work. West of the Forecourt will be the outdoor horticultural displays and the Women's building. We cross now the Triumphal Bridge, which will be remarkable for its tall piers, richly ornamented with statuary, the product of the genius of Karl Bitter, the director of sculpture, and other famous sculptors. On either side are the Mirror Lakes which form a part of the Grand Canal, more than a mile in length, which surrounds the main group of buildings.

We come next to the Esplanade, which is nearly two-fifths of a mile long and 450 feet wide. The western end of the Esplanade is inclosed by the Horticulture, Graphic Arts and Mines buildings. The eastern end is shut in by the Government group of three large buildings. Sunken gardens with elaborate fountains and many groups of sculpture occupy the two arms of the Esplanade, and the decorative features throughout this broad space are very numerous and beautiful. North of the Esplanade is the Court of Fountains, with the Ethnology building on the right and the Music building on the left. Two subordinate courts also open into the Esplanade from the north, the one on the right being known as the Court of Cypresses and the one on the left as the Court of Lilies. Next, north of the Ethnology building on the right and fronting upon the Court of Fountains, is the Manufactures and Liberal Arts building and on the opposite side the Machinery and Transportation building. In the Court of Fountains is a large pool, having an area of about two acres and containing many beautiful fountains. Proceeding again northward we come to the Mall, a broad avenue, half a mile long, extending from the eastern boundary to the western gate of the Exposition. Fronting upon the Mall on the right is the Agriculture building and on the left the Electricity building. We now arrive at the most conspicuous feature of the Exposition, the massive Electric Tower, 391 feet in height. This tower stands between the Court of Fountains and the Plaza, in a broad pool, about two acres in extent. This will be the most ornamental feature of the great Exposition and will be the centerpiece for special and elaborate electrical illumination. Immediately north of the Electric Tower is the Plaza, with its beautiful sunken garden and bandstand in the center, the Propylaea or monumental entrances at the north, the entrance to the Stadium on the east and the entrance to the Midway on the west.

It should be understood by every intending visitor that the Exposition will present the most beautiful spectacle that twentieth century genius can provide. By day there will be a most pleasing display of floral and fountain effects. The many buildings, with their elaborate and delicate tracery of ornamental plastic work and their radiance of color, the many groups of statuary in every part of the grounds, will constitute a picture never before paralleled. At night all the buildings will glow with the soft radiance of thousands of electric lights, making a scene of unrivaled brilliance and splendor. Half a million lamps will be used in the electrical illumination.

It should also be added that the Midway at the Exposition will be the most extensive and novel that has ever been prepared. It will be 3,000 feet long, having more than a mile of frontage. Over 30 very interesting features, many of them covering several acres, will make up this gigantic collection of wonders.

The athletic features of the Exposition will be shown in the Stadium, which covers about ten acres of ground and contains a seating capacity for more than 12,000 people. All of the exhibit buildings will be filled to completion with the very latest products of Pan-American genius and industry and will offer an opportunity for every inquiring mind to learn a most interesting lesson of New World progress and civilization.

The power for Exposition uses is furnished principally from Niagara Falls, which are situated only a few minutes ride from the Exposition grounds. Buffalo is a city of nearly 400,000 population and is preparing in every possible way for the reception of millions of visitors in 1901. MARK BENNITT.

How Flags Wear Out.

It costs money to fly even two small flags every day in the year. The two small ones on the east and west fronts of the capitol, each about three yards long, which is small for such an immense structure as the capitol, fray out so fast that it costs $100 a year to replace them. They are darned every day and on windy days probably two or three times. Even with all these economies $100 worth of fine wool floats off into the air in such fine particles that never a trace of it can be found even at the foot of the two flagstaffs.—Pittsburg Dispatch.

A Dude of 1770.

From a newspaper printed in the year 1770 is the following description of a dandy: "A few days ago a macaroni made his appearance in the assembly rooms at Whitehaven, dressed in a mixed silk coat, pink satin waistcoat and breeches, covered with an elegant silk net, white silk stockings with pink clocks, pink satin shoes and large pearl buttons; a mushroom colored stock, covered with fine point lace; hair dressed remarkably high and stuck full of pearl pins."

Lucky.

Blinks—Lucky man, that fellow Jones.

Winks—I don't see how you make it.

Blinks—Why, he took out a life insurance policy for £1,000 and died six days before the company failed.—Exchange.

Letting 'Em Down Easy.

Roberts—Have you heard anything about Thompson's affairs since the failure? When does he expect to resume?

Peters—Just as soon as the creditors become reconciled to the fact that they won't get a cent.—Harlem Life.

PAINTING BIG SIGNS.

ARTISTS WHO DEVOTE THEIR TALENT TO ADVERTISING PURPOSES.

Some of Them Have Had Years of Training In Drawing and Color Work, and Some Have Studied In Famous Old World Ateliers.

Although the vivid advertisements of the excellences of foods, ointments, clothing, all mechanical appliances known to man and a thousand other things never dreamed of in the philosophy of a hundred years ago are continually catching the eye and possibly shocking the artistic sensibilities of the beholder, few of the ordinary observers give a moment's question to the makers of advertisements. The advertising craze has grown of late to such huge and unlovely proportions that any brief account fails to explain its workings. The office of a large advertising concern is one of the busiest places in town. Artists are constantly appearing with designs for the firm, a small army of men with paint pots and brushes are hovering about waiting to be sent out, and everywhere are gay evidences of the results of all this labor.

"Who are the men that paint these 'heroic' pictures one sees on unused walls and lofty fences?" asked a reporter of one of the men who keeps these subordinates busy.

"They are not the people you think them, I fancy," was the answer. "Instead of being daubers, with about the ability necessary to wield a whitewash brush, our best men are real artists. By this I mean that many of them have had years of training in drawing and color work. Several of them have studied abroad in the ateliers of well known men. A man whom I saw painting a head on a wall yesterday is a night instructor in a Brooklyn art school. Recently one of our men painted on a large wall the biggest portrait ever attempted. He had studied five years in the Paris art schools."

"Why do they take up this work?"

"The other doesn't pay. It's a case of 'commercialism in art.' They find that they can't make the real thing pay, so they come to this common calling. There's money in it. Why, our star painters get $50 a week. The daubers, who put in backgrounds, don't earn more than $10 or $15 a week."

The men who paint the designs in various inaccessible and conspicuous places have with them small copies of the designs to be reproduced. Long experience makes them expert in accurately tracing the design upon the chosen surface. Although the familiar advertisements scattered over the city seem exactly alike and one face seems the exact counterpart of another, yet closer inspection will show various points of difference. In the case of a very familiar picture which is displayed from one end of the United States to the other, when it was first brought out one man was hired for the sole purpose of painting that one design, and to do this he traveled from Maine to California.

"Not the least of our difficulties," said the advertising man, "is finding places to put our signs. We hire men who do nothing else but go about and obtain permission from owners to put up billboards on their premises, use a vacant wall or decorate a fence or a roof. It needs great tact to do this. When there are objections, they must be overcome, and after this is done the owner often gets the idea that his available space is worth thousands of dollars to us and to him. The experiences of advertising men among farmers and tramps would make a mighty interesting book."

"Why do you say tramps?"

"Oh, the tramps are our worst enemies. They build fires behind our billboards and burn them or else tear them down out of sheer wantonness."

When asked about the price a blank brick wall in a conspicuous part of New York would bring to its owner if he let it for advertising purposes, the advertising man laughed and said he could not tell that, but he did not mind saying that he was now paying $6,000 a year rent for a wall in the middle of the shopping district. "This is not an unusual sum to pay," he added, "for such prominent positions."

Advertising firms are liberal subscribers to all art magazines, particularly to those French art periodicals which display the newest drawings of the still popular poster. The ideas of the foreign artists are taken freely and converted into gaudy designs for advertising the latest song or a new cigar without the least compensation, since, as the advertisers assert, American ideas are assimilated abroad just as unceremoniously.

Not all the large reproductions of figures and faces on our streets and along the roof tops are handwork. Many of them are machine made. By a process akin to that of making lithographs machines have been invented to lay the colors automatically. The finished product, quite devoid of personality, presents accurately a copy of the working design.—New York Post.

Measuring Your Man.

Put this in your pipe and smoke it: There is always some chap smarter than the chap you think is the smartest on earth—meaning yourself. You are a wonderful judge of human nature, but don't measure your man too confidently, for 99 times in 100 you'll find the suit doesn't fit. Never play favorites. The lightweight today, in your measurement, will be the heavyweight tomorrow. Old friends, like old wine, will in the end prove best. Never go back on an old friend unless you have plenty of money well invested. Possessed of a big bank account and flushed with success—the mischief take friends, old and new!—New York Press.

The Happy Medium.

A clergyman relates that a worthy Irishman with an impediment in his speech brought him a child to be baptized. While making a record of it he was in some doubt as to the correct spelling of the family name given to him and asked the man how he wrote it.

"Indeed and I don't write at all," was the reply.

"I just want to know," said Father Boyle, "whether the name is 'McGrath' or 'Magrath'—whether the second part of it is spelled with a big 'G' or a little 'g.'"

After scratching his head hopelessly the puzzled parent saw his way out of the difficulty. "Well, father, just spell it wid a middlin sized 'g.'"—Exchange.

It Won't Roll Off.

The egg of the guillemot is one of the most peculiar and furnishes an admirable example of the way in which nature provides for the conditions of life.

This bird is found on the coast, and the eggs are usually laid on the bare edges of high rocks, from which position any ordinary specimen of the egg would probably roll off.

But the guillemot's egg won't do this. It has been fashioned by nature to stop on. The egg is nearly conical in shape, broad at the base and sharp at the point, so that it will only roll in a circle.

Better Than Making a Note.

"Just before Badmun was sent to prison he bought a set of books to be paid for in installments."

"What did he do that for?"

"He said it would make the time seem shorter."—Chicago Tribune.

To determine the height of clouds an observer at each of two stations a mile or more apart measures the angle and altitude of some point of a cloud, the identity of which is ascertained from conversation by telephone, while synchronism in the observation is secured by the beating of electric pendulums. This is the method used at the celebrated observatories at Upsala, in Sweden.

Why He Growled.

Hoax—I saw you at the theater last night. You were in the dog seat.

Joax—Sir, what do you mean?

Hoax—Weren't you sitting in K—9?—Philadelphia Record.

Four Ministers

Tell of Magical Results Brought About in Burning, Itching, Bleeding Skin Troubles by Dr. Chase's Ointment.

Dr. Chase's Ointment draws more praise from ministers, physicians and lawyers than any other medicine in the world. It is endorsed by every profession.

Extracts from their Letters.

Rev. W. N. Edwards, Baptist minister, 109 Trinity Place, Buffalo, N. Y., writes:

"For over fifteen years the itching piles have been a source of constant annoyance to me, and frequently, too, the suffering has become intense. At times there was bleeding and the itching and burning was beyond endurance. The results I have derived from Dr. Chase's Ointment have been magical and the benefits lasting. I feel it a duty to fellow sufferers to recommend it."

Rev. J. N. Van Natter, Methodist minister, Albion, Wis., writes:

"My wife was terribly afflicted with protruding piles and contemplated a surgical operation when her notice was drawn to Dr. Chase's Ointment, and less than one box effected a cure."

"I then used it for an unsightly and troublesome skin affection, which had baffled medical skill for twenty-five years. Dr. Chase's Ointment thoroughly cured it. For piles and skin disease it is worth its weight in gold."

Rev. J. A. Baldwin, Baptist minister, Arkona, Ont., writes:

"For over twenty years I was a great sufferer from itching and protruding piles. I used many remedies and underwent three very painful surgical operations, all without obtaining any permanent benefit. When about to give up in despair I was told to use Dr. Chase's Ointment and did so, finding relief at once. I used three boxes, and am entirely cured. The itching is all gone. I have advised others to use it, believing it would cure them as it has me."

Rev. Chas. Fish, Methodist minister, 192 Dunn avenue, Toronto, Ont., writes:

"Ten years ago eczema began on my ears and spread over my head and hands. During that time I was a great sufferer. I tried many remedies, and some of the best physicians—specialists on skin diseases—treated me. The first box of Dr. Chase's Ointment gave much relief and five boxes completely cured me. I think my cure a marvel, and gladly recommend Dr. Chase's Ointment."

Just as good for every form of skin trouble, no matter how long standing. 50 cents a box, all dealers or Dr. A. W. Chase Medicine Co., Buffalo, N. Y.

Refused Spain's Crown.

The remarkable romance of Elsie Hensler, the Boston girl, who married King Ferdinand of Portugal, is recalled by Mabel Percy Haskell, in the "Ladies' Home Journal."

At her marriage Miss Hensler was created the Countess of Edla, and with her royal husband took up her home in the beautiful palace of Cintra. Had she wished it the Countess of Edla might hava been Queen of Spain, for King Ferdinand declined the crown of Spain in 1869, soon after his marriage to the beautiful American girl. It was offered to him by General Prim and General Serrano, and both the king and his lovely wife decided that their quiet life, so free from cares of state, was infinitely to be preferred to the worry and fret of a great European court.

Ferdinand died in 1885, and since then rhe countess has lived in retirement in the Palace of Cintra. She is visited by members of the present royal family and is greatly beloved by them, for they never can forget how fine and good was her gentle influence over the king, and they shared his admiration for her. She is treated as if she had been born to the purple instead of far across the sea.

Buckwheat Cake Contest.

A correspondent of the Port Royal "Times" says:

A spirited contest, to see who could eat the most buckwheat cakes, came off at Mangerville on Thursday evening, the 7th. The one who won the prize was to be exempt from making the fire for a period of six months. The caterer, R. J. Cadwalader, had everything ready for the contest. The batter was exceptionally nice and light, a supply of dry wood was on hand in order that the temperature of the stove would not vary. A new large greaser lay on a platter near by ready for the griddle and the dipper was already in the crock. Siz, siz, as the batter flowed on the griddle, one, two, three, was the signal that the contest had begun. Van Sweringen held the honors at the close of the first round with Middagh a close second. Peck was the lead on the wind up of round No. 2, but Drolesbaugh got the lead and staid there until the close of the contest. He was awarded the prize, having eaten 27 large cakes.

Mother of Twenty-six Children.

HOPEWELL, Pa., March 22.—The wife of Jules Kupstos, a Belgian miner on Sandy Run, gave birth one day last week to her twenty-sixth child—nineteen boys and seven girls. The oldest is 27 years of age. Of the total number eighteen died in infancy and eight are yet living. These births consisted of triplets once, twins three times and seventeen single. The mother is 45 years of age and was married when 17 years old. The father is 53. Both are in good health.

Fitted for Life's Battle.

Thirty-nine Indian boys and girls have recently received their graduating degrees at the United States Indian school in Carlisle, Pa. Sixteen of them are girls and in the entire class of graduates nearly every one of the principal tribes are represented. All of the boys have learned trades and the girls have served apprenticeships in the sewing department, laundry and kitchen.

—At Renovo Thursday Neal Donovan, 10 years old, was crossing the railroad track on an errand. He was run down by a freight engine, having both legs and arm cut off. He died a short time after. When his father, John Donovan, arrived on the scene, the little fellow piteously requested him not to tell his mother that he had been hurt.

—Houtzdale has been said to be going down, in a business way, for a good while, and now one of its streets has begun to cave in, the result of mining pushed under the foundations of the town. It is feared that in time that once thriving town will be "out of sight."

—Chicago has another biggest thing of its kind, in the eight-track movable bridge across the drainage canal, just completed at a cost of $720,000.

JUST THE SAME OLD WAY.

The battle is fought and the world moves on,
Just in the same old way,
We wake in the morn with a lazy yawn,
Just in the same old way,
The sun yet rises away back east,
The poor ones starve and the rich ones feast,
The rural wife sets her buckwheat yeast,
Just in the same old way.

The lovers stroll 'neath the same old moon,
Just in the same old way,
Or sit in a darkened room and croon,
Just in the same old way,
The farmer gathers his ripened corn,
The roosters crow in the early morn
And folks are wedded and babies born,
Just in the same old way.

The brooks and the rivers downward flow,
Just in the same old way,
The breezes and politicians blow,
Just in the same old way.
The farm kid fattens on cornmeal mush,
The old maids sigh and the girlies blush,
And the dames for the bargain counters rush
Just in the same old way.

The sad ones weep and the glad ones rejoice
Just in the same old way.
The rag man uses the same old voice,
Just in the same old way,
The jag man serves his Kentucky juice
And sends men home with the lodge excuse
To wives in waiting, who raise the deuce,
Just in the same old way.

The fight is o'er and the old earth spins,
Just in the same old way.
The Christian prays and the sinners sin
Just in the same old way,
We have our joy and we have our care
But here and yonder and everywhere
The old flag jewels the same old air,
Just in the same old way.

Henry Bowen Dead.

The remains of Henry Bowen, who died in New York City, on the 20th of March of heart failure were brought to Bellefonte Saturday morning for interment here. Services were held in St. John's Catholic church after which the burial took place in the Tammany family lot in the Catholic cemetery.

Deceased was born in Elmira, N. Y., and was the son of the late Edmund Bowen. He was 41 years of age, was a civil engineer by profession. He was a cousin of the Brockerhoff's, of this place, and also of Capt. W. A. Simpson, of Lock Haven. He was a grandson of Henry Tammany one of the towns old settlers. He was unmarried and is survived by one brother, Edmund Bowen, superintendent of the Ogdensburg Railroad, Ogdensburg, N. Y.

The casket in which the remains of the dead reposed was covered with beautiful floral offerings.

The pall-bearers were Judge Wm. S. Harris, A. W. McCormick and Henry C. Evans, of Lock Haven; Harry Fenlon, John M. Dale and Geo. T. Bush, Bellefonte.

Strikes A Rich Find.

"I was troubled for several years with chronic indigestion and nervous debility," writes F. J. Green, of Lancaster, N. H., "No remedy helped me until I began using Electric Bitters, which did me more good than all the medicines I ever used. They have also kept my wife in excellent health for years. She says Electric Bitters are just splendid for female troubles; that they are a grand tonic and invigorator for weak, run down women. No other medicine can take its place in our family." Try them. Only 50c. Satisfaction guaranteed by F. Potts Greens Druggists.

—In variety and value of contents McClure's Magazine for April will be a notable number. Timeliness, literary woth, historical researches, analysis of character, studies in natural history, and life next to the soil, in the metropolis, in the Orient, all these and more will distinguish the forthcoming issue. A vivid light will be thrown on the actual moral status of the police in New York City by Josiah Flynt's article under the title "'York,' a Dishonest City." "The Story of a Beaver," toldby Wm. Davenport will give a complete and sympathetic account of an animal concerning which very little is commonly known. Many and elaborate pictures will complete this interpretation of the beaver's life. Ida M. Tarbell will tell of "The Disbanding of the Confederate Army," an article of strongest interest and, too, of historical importance.

Remarkable Sheep.

John Mechtley, of Buffalo Run is very proud of the remarkable progeneration of eight ewes he owns.

They gave birth to 16 lambs this spring. One had four lambs, 5 of them dropped 2 each and the remaining two had one each; making 16 lambs from 8 ewes.

Can any sheep raiser in the county beat this record?

HE DIDN'T HALF TRY.

Or He Might Have Sustained His Farm Stock.

Notwithstanding the many letters which James McKeage received from old maids, widows and girls, the sale of the farm stock of that gentleman took place in Crawford twp. Wednesday. Many of the friends of Mr. McKeage had hoped that some fair maid or blushing widow would make it necessary to have the minister instead of the auctioneer, but in this hope they were disappointed. A score of women were in attendance, but they resided in the neighborhood, and had husbands of their own to look after. The men were out in force, and their sympathy for McKeage resulted in lively bidding and high prices. One after another the cows, calves, hogs, driving horses and colts were put up by the auctioneer, and each reached a fancy price before the bidding ceased.

"It's too blamed bad Jim couldn't get a wife," was the way one sympathetic farmer expressed himself as the sale came to an end, but his wife shook her head in a wise manner and remarked: "I don't believe he half tried."

A Philipsburg Lady's Death.

Mrs. Thad S. Keating died very suddenly at her home at Philipsburg about twenty minutes past 2 o'clock Tuesday morning. Mr. Keating, who is an engineer on the Tyrone division had been out on the night local to Clearfield returning home at 2 o'clock. On his arrival Mrs. Keating had begun to prepare a lunch for him, as usual, and talked freely about the incidents of the day, such as the Dixon fire, etc. He had scarcely sat down to the table, when she complained all at once of having a bad headache. He urged her to go back to bed, and she had only been up stairs a couple of minutes until she came down again with both hands clasped over her breast. Mr. Keating immediately started for a doctor, but before he returned she had expired in the presence of her two daughters and a few friends. Heart trouble was thought to be the direct cause of her death. Deceased was aged about 51 years.

Robert R. Watts, of Salem, Mo., writes: —"I have been troubled with kidney disease for the last five years and have doctored with all the leading physicians and have tried all remedies suggested without any relief. Finally I tried Foley's Kidney Cure and less than two bottles completely cured me and I am sound and well." All Druggists.

When Were You Born.

Here is an old astrological prediction, said to indicate with tolerable certainty the character of the girl according to the month of her birth:—

If a girl is born in January she will be a prudent housewife, given to melancholy, but good tempered.

If in February, a humane and affectionate wife and tender mother.

If in March, a frivolous chatterbox, somewhat given to quarreling.

If in April, inconsistent, not intelligent, but likely to be good looking.

If in May, handsome, and likely to be happy.

If in June, impetuous, will marry early and be frivolous.

If in July, passably handsome, but with a sulky temper.

If in August, amiable and practicable, likely to marry rich.

If in September, discreet, affable and much liked.

If in October, pretty and coquettish and likely to be unhappy.

If in November, liberal, kind, of a mild disposition.

If in December, well-proportioned, fond of novelty and extravagant.—Press.

The Church Dance.

The ancient custom of dancing in church is still practiced in the parish church of Musgrave, Westmoreland, England, in connection with the ancient rite of rush-bearing. On May Day each year twelve young maidens of Brough, approved by the vicar, assemble at the foot of Brough Bridge, with flowers and fresh garlands on their heads. Accompanied by a band they proceeded through the fields to Musgrave, the band playing and the rush-bearers dancing. The girls are led up the north aisle of the church, and they hang their garlands at the side, there to remain until the next year. The gospel is read by the clergyman, prayers are offered and the psalms sung, after which the clerk and vicar retire. A space is then cleared near the altar and a fiddle produced. Dancing begins and continues until the afternoon.

Dancing is also frequently seen in Continental churches. During the Corpus Christi octave a ballet is danced every evening before the high altar of Seville Cathedral by boys from 12 to 17 years of age. They wear plumed hats and the dress of pages of the time of Philip III. To this day a dancing procession chanting a curious carol takes place at Echternach, in Luxemburg, on Tuesday in Whitsun week. It is called the Procession of the Jumping Saint. It consists of a long train of pilgrims dancing three paces forward and then backward. They are headed by the clergy, all dancing. They dance from the bridge over the Saur to the church, round the altar, and then separated at cross in the cemetery.

Another Railroad Project.

A special to the DuBois Courier from Calendonia says: A large corps of engineers has arrived here from Philadelphia to begin the survey of a railroad from some point on the Allegheny Valley railroad to the mouth of Deer creek in Clearfield county, there to connect with the new West Branch Valley line which is being built by the New York Central. The object of this new line is to connect the Allegheny Valley railroad and the new line which will be an outlet for the immense coal fields of the Big Knobs in Clearfield county. It is the intention of the promoters of this new route to ask for a charter at the earliest possible date, and begin operations as soon as the surveying is complete. The road will be an expensive one to build according to the locating corps who were on the ground last summer. But as the company is capitalized at $2,170 000, it is almost certain that some kind of business is meant. The promoters are well known men of the east and are rated as millionaires many times over. It is the intention to have the road ready by the time the West Branch Valley line is completed.

American Shoes in Foreign Market.

Nearly 1,000,000 pairs of American shoes are now sold yearly in the British market, in spite of the tax on hides with which manufacturers on this side have to contend and from which British makers are exempt. The superiority of American machinery, brings acess to foreign markets. Besides shoes made here are more shapely and are sold more cheaply than those made in Europe.

Carnegie's Greatest Benefaction.

He sets aside an additional million to yield $50,000 for the maintenance of the Carnegie libraries at Braddock, Homestead and Duquesne.

Pity and Beauty

The most beautiful thing in the world is the baby, all dimples and joy. The most pitiful thing is that same baby, thin and in pain. And the mother does not know that a little fat makes all the difference.

Dimples and joy have gone, and left hollows and fear; the fat, that was comfort and color and curve--all but pity and love--is gone.

The little one gets no fat from her food. There is something wrong; it is either her food or food-mill. She has had no fat for weeks; is living on what she had stored in that plump little body of hers; and that is gone. She is starving for fat; it is death, be quick!

Scott's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil is the fat she can take; it will save her.

Women as Well as Men Are Made Miserable by Kidney Trouble.

Kidney trouble preys upon the mind, discourages and lessens ambition; beauty, vigor and cheerfulness soon disappear when the kidneys are out of order or diseased.

Kidney trouble has become so prevalent that it is not uncommon for a child to be born afflicted with weak kidneys. If the child urinates too often, if the urine scalds the flesh or if, when the child reaches an age when it should be able to control the passage, it is yet afflicted with bed-wetting, depend upon it, the cause of the difficulty is kidney trouble, and the first step should be towards the treatment of these important organs. This unpleasant trouble is due to a diseased condition of the kidneys and bladder and not to a habit as most people suppose.

Women as well as men are made miserable with kidney and bladder trouble, and both need the same great remedy. The mild and the immediate effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It is sold by druggists, in fifty-cent and one dollar sizes. You may have a sample bottle by mail free, also pamphlet telling all about it, including many of the thousands of testimonial letters received from sufferers cured. In writing Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., be sure and mention this paper.

By the light from the lamp they saw a man hurrying away up the hill. He carried a large bundle under his arm but they could not tell who it was. The thief was discovered before he had time to steal anything. The affair was reported to the police but no arrest has yet been made.

Bickle the Lock Haven Democrat says: Rev. Mr. Bickle delivered two very excellent sermons in this city. They were the subject of favorable comment by the congregation. Although young in the ministry, Rev. Mr. Bickle has revealed a ratifying development in the unfolding of God's word and gives promise of attaining a high place in the ranks of his ministerial brethren.

Friday Night's Fire.

Friday evening about 8 o'clock the fire alarm sounded for the South ward and on investigation it proved to be at the residence of Clayton Bowser, in the Joseph Parson's property opposite the Phoenix Flour mill.

An overheated stove in the sitting room on the second floor of the house set fire to a couch which was near it. Mrs. Bowser's infant daughter was asleep on the lounge at the time and the mother was at work in the basement below. The smell of smoke attracted her attention and she hastened up stairs just in time to save her little one from being burned to death. She at once gave the alarm of fire and neighbors hurried to her assistance. The burning couch was thrown out the back door where it was entirely consumed. No further damage was done. Both fire companies responded promptly but their services were fortunately not needed.

KILLED AT MINERAL POINT.

A Man Who Answers the Description of "Toss" McCafferty of Bellefonte.

On last Wednesday night there was a freight train wrecked on the Penna., railroad at a place called Mineral Point near Johnstown and an unknown man who was riding on the train at the time was killed. His body was so badly cut up as to be unrecognizable. The remains were taken to Johnstown and buried the next day. Later investigation leads to the belief that the man was Thomas McCafferty, better known to his friends as "Toss" of this city.

McCafferty was employed in Pittsburg but came home to attend the funeral of his father, the late Richard McCafferty. On Tuesday of last week with his brother, Martin, he left Bellefonte for Pittsburg separating from his brother at Altoona, the latter going to Loretta, where he was working.

Miss Bessie McCafferty, a cousin, went to Altoona to investigate the matter. Word received from her seems to confirm the dread news. The dead man answers to the description of Toss McCafferty and the clothes tally to those he wore when he left Bellefonte. In addition to this the name T. McCafferty was on the collar.

A Quiet Home Wedding.

A quiet home wedding which was rather a surprise, although not wholly unexpected to the many friends of the interested parties, took place Tuesday evening at 8.30 o'clock at the home of Mrs. Jane W. Tate, on West Bishop street. The happy bride was the daughter of the house, Miss Blanche E. Tate and the worthy groom Hiram D. Fetterhoff, of this city.

The affair was very quietly planned and carried out only a few of the immediate friends and neighbors being present. The ceremony was performed by Rev. H. C. Holloway D. D., pastor of the Lutheran church, and there was no bridesmaids nor best man.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Fetterhoff are well and favorably known in Bellefonte where they have resided most of their lives and their many friends will certainly wish them an abundance of happiness and prosperity in their married state.

Good Luck to You, General.

Judge James A. Beaver, of the Superior Court of this state, has been spending some weeks in Cuba. He was received with great distinction by the officials and citizens of Havana, It is understood that after careful examination and investigation he has purchased several large sugar plantations. We hope that his large investments in the "Queen of the Antilles" will prove most profitable to him.—The Cambria Tribune.

We had not heard that Judge Beaver had made any investments while in Cuba. He may or he may not have done so. If he has we feel assured that the sentiment in our community is that the very best success may attend his ventures. Judge Beaver is one of Bellefonte's few—a'as, too few—public spirited and liberal citizens, and all know that his good fortune is Bellefonte's gain. We simply express popular feeling when we say, "Good luck to you, General."

The marriage of Miss Emma Virginia Graham, of Mt. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Wilbur F. Watkins, Jr., rector of the church. The cancel and altar were wreathed with asparagus fern and massed with lilies and roses by members of the guild, to which the bride belonged. The wedding march was played by Miss Bessie Leary.

The bride was attired in white Persian lawn, trimmed with lace, and wore a white picture hat. She carried a white velvet prayerbook, a gift of the rector. The maid of honor was Miss Daisy Graham, sister of the bride, who wore white organdy and black chiffon hat. The bride was given away by her brother, Mr. Joseph Graham, of New York city.
